

P R E F A C E

This special issue of the Review is made up of a series of articles on Company Law which were first presented as research papers by candidates in the subject, The Law of Bodies Corporate and Unincorporate on 1st October 1969. This is one of the subjects in the LL.M. degree at the Victoria University of Wellington. With the approval of the Dean of the Faculty of Law a candidate may substitute a research paper in an LL.M. subject for one or both of the papers for the examination in that subject.

In 1969 the class in the Law of Bodies Corporate and Unincorporate was conducted by Mr P. D. McKenzie and Mr B. K. Knowles.

The five research papers published in this issue were of a standard which the editorial committee considered deserved a wider publication. They have been edited for publication in the Review by the respective authors in association with the general editor.
