18. (1) The following provisions shall apply for the purposes of this section, namely:

total amount of the income tax and social security charge payable by the company in respect of income derived by it during that year:

Provided that, for the purposes of this paragraph, the social security charge payable by the company shall be calculated as if social security charge were payable by the company not only on income of the company which is chargeable under the Social Security Act 1938 but also on the taxable proprietary income derived by it from any other company during that year:

1938, No. 7

Provided also that in the application of this section to any shareholder that is a company the residual taxable income of the proprietary company for any income year shall be deemed to be the amount of the taxable income of the proprietary company for that year:

- (g) The term "total income", in relation to any proprietary company and any income year, means the total amount of the residual taxable income and non-assessable income of the company for that year:
- (h) The total income derived in any income year by a proprietary company shall be deemed to be income derived in that year from the company by the shareholders of the company. In the case of an ordinary proprietary company the total income shall be deemed to be derived by the shareholders in the proportions which the numbers of shares held by or on behalf of the shareholders respectively bear to the total number of shares issued by the company. In the case of a proprietary company other than an ordinary proprietary company the total income shall be deemed to be derived by the shareholders in proportions determined in such manner as may be prescribed by regulations made under the principal Act, or in default of any such regulations or so far as they do not extend, in such proportions as the Commissioner thinks just and reasonable, having regard to the nature and relative importance of the interests of the shareholders in the company:

- (i) The term “proprietary income”, in relation to any shareholder in any proprietary company and any income year, means the income deemed under this subsection to have been derived by the shareholder from the company in that year in every case where that income (together with any other income deemed under this section to have been derived by that shareholder in that year) is not less than one-fourth of the total income of the company for that year. The proprietary income derived by a shareholder from any proprietary company in any income year shall be deemed to consist of assessable and non-assessable income in the proportions in which the total income of the company for that year consists of residual taxable income and non-assessable income:
- (j) The term “proprietary assessment”, in relation to any taxpayer and any income year, means an assessment which includes, in addition to any other income, the whole of the proprietary income derived by the taxpayer in that year:
- (k) The term “non-proprietary assessment”, in relation to any taxpayer and any income year, means an assessment which does not include any of the proprietary income which the taxpayer has derived in that year:
- (l) Where pursuant to section ninety-eight of the principal Act the Commissioner treats as a single company two or more companies any one or more of which hold shares in another company, the companies so treated as a single company shall be deemed to be one shareholder of that other company, and, for the purpose of paragraph (a) of subsection one of this section, to be one person:
- (m) Where two or more companies (in this paragraph referred to as the holding companies) which are under the control of the same persons hold such shares or debentures in any other company that if the holding companies were a single company the other company would be a proprietary company from which that single company would derive proprietary income, the other company shall be deemed to be a proprietary company and the income derived therefrom by the holding companies shall be deemed to be proprietary income of the holding companies:

(n) Where a proprietary company derives proprietary income, either directly or through any intermediate proprietary company or companies, from another proprietary company, and that other proprietary company also derives proprietary income from the proprietary company first mentioned, whether directly or through any intermediate proprietary company or companies, the Commissioner may, notwithstanding anything in paragraph (g) of this subsection, exclude from the total income of any of the proprietary companies concerned such portion of the proprietary income derived by that company as he determines and may allocate to the shareholders of that company such portion of the total income derived by that company as he thinks just and reasonable, having regard to the nature and relative importance of the interests of the shareholders in that company.

(2) The proprietary income derived by any shareholder in any income year shall be deemed to be assessable income or (as the case may require) non-assessable income for that year, and, where a proprietary assessment is made, shall be included in that assessment accordingly. The tax payable for any year by any shareholder shall be either—

(a) The tax assessed for that year in a proprietary assessment made on the shareholder, after making the deduction provided for by paragraph (c) of subsection three of this section; or

- (b) The tax assessed for that year in a non-proprietary assessment made on the shareholder,— whichever amount of tax is the greater, and the shareholder shall be assessable and liable for tax accordingly:

Provided that where any dividend or any interest of the kind referred to in section one hundred and seventeen of the principal Act has been derived from a proprietary company by a shareholder in that company before the passing of this Act, and—

- (a) The inclusion of that dividend or interest in an assessment made on that shareholder; or

- (b) Where the shareholder is a trustee, the inclusion of that dividend or interest in an assessment made on a beneficiary under the trust—in respect of income derived during the income year ending on the thirty-first day of March, nineteen hundred and fifty-three, or during the income year ending on the thirty-first day of March, nineteen hundred and fifty-four, increases the tax payable under the assessment beyond the amount that would have been payable if this section had not been passed, the Commissioner shall reduce the tax to the amount that would have been so payable.

(3) The following provisions shall apply with respect to every proprietary assessment made under this section in respect of income derived by any shareholder during any income year:

- (a) No portion of any loss incurred by any taxpayer (being a loss of the kind referred to in section eighty-one of the principal Act) shall be deducted from or set off against his proprietary income:
- (b) All deductions from the assessable income by way of special exemption shall, to the extent of the portion of the assessable income that is not proprietary income, be made from that portion, and the balance (if any) shall be deducted from the assessable proprietary income:
- (c) Where the proprietary income of the shareholder or any portion thereof is taxable under this section and that income is also taxable in the same year of assessment as being income derived by a proprietary company, there shall be deducted from the tax payable by the shareholder a sum equal to the income tax payable by the company in respect of that income.

(4) The assessment of any shareholder of a proprietary company in accordance with the provisions of this section shall not affect the assessment or liability for tax of that proprietary company.

(5) Nothing in the provisions of this section shall be construed to affect the assessment or liability of any shareholder for social security charge.

(6) Notwithstanding the provisions of section six of the Land and Income Tax Amendment Act 1931, no dividends or interest derived by a shareholder from a proprietary company in any income year (the interest being interest of the kind referred to in section one hundred and seventeen of the principal Act) shall be included in a proprietary assessment that includes proprietary income derived by the shareholder from that company.

(7) Where an assessment made in respect of the income derived by any taxpayer in any income year includes a dividend from a company from which the taxpayer has derived proprietary income during one or more of the four income years immediately preceding that income year, there shall be deducted by way of rebate in calculating the tax payable the additional tax payable under a proprietary assessment made in respect of income derived by the taxpayer in any one or more of those four immediately preceding income years, to the extent that it does not exceed the additional tax payable by reason of the inclusion of that dividend.

(8) Where any additional tax payable under a proprietary assessment has been allowed to any taxpayer as a rebate under subsection seven of this section, the amount so allowed shall not be again allowable as a rebate under that subsection to that taxpayer or to the wife or husband of that taxpayer.

(9) For the purposes of subsections seven and eight of this section—

(a) "Additional tax payable by reason of the inclusion of that dividend" means the amount by which the income tax payable in any year under a proprietary or non-proprietary assessment which includes that dividend exceeds the tax that would be payable if that dividend had not been derived in that year:

(b) "Additional tax payable under a proprietary assessment"—

(i) In relation to the income year that ended on the thirty-first day of March nineteen hundred and fifty-three, or any subsequent year, means the amount by which the tax payable under the proprietary assessment in respect of any such income year exceeds the tax that would be payable by the taxpayer under a non-proprietary assessment in respect of that income year:

(ii) In relation to any income year before the year that ended on the thirty-first day of March, nineteen hundred and fifty-three, means the amount by which the tax payable under an assessment made in accordance with section twenty-three of the Land and Income Tax Amendment Act 1939 in respect of any such income year exceeds the tax that would be payable by the taxpayer under an assessment made in respect of that income year as if that section had not been passed.

(10) With respect to the proprietary income derived by a trustee from a proprietary company during any income year, the following provisions shall apply:

(a) The whole or any part of the proprietary income may for the purposes of this section be allocated by the Commissioner to such one or more of the beneficiaries under the trust, and if more than one in such proportions, as the Commissioner determines. The Commissioner shall make the allocation in such manner as he deems just and equitable, having regard to the respective interests of the beneficiaries under the trust:

(b) If and so far as the proprietary income of the trustee is so allocated to any beneficiary it shall be deemed for the purposes of this section and of section one hundred and two of the principal Act to be also proprietary income derived by the beneficiary as a beneficiary entitled in possession to the receipt thereof under the trust during the same income year, and for the purposes of this section the beneficiary shall be deemed to be a shareholder of the proprietary company accordingly:

(c) If and so far as the proprietary income of the trustee is not allocated by the Commissioner to any beneficiary, it shall for the purposes of this section and of section one hundred and two of the principal Act be deemed not to be also proprietary income derived by any beneficiary as aforesaid.
