

DANGEROUS GOODS BILL

EXPLANATORY NOTE

THIS Bill consolidates and amends the Dangerous Goods Act 1957 and its amendments.

The principal amendments relate to the method by which licensing authorities are appointed, the binding of the Crown in certain cases, and a new Schedule of dangerous goods.

The new Schedule follows the classification recommended by the United Nations Committee of Experts on the transport of dangerous goods, a classification adopted in the International Maritime Dangerous Goods Code. The Schedule comprises Classes 2 to 5, and Class 8. Other classes contained in the recommendations of the Committee are covered in New Zealand by separate legislation. For example, Class 1 (explosives) is dealt with in the Explosives Act 1957; Class 6 (poisons) is covered by the Poisons Act 1960. The subclasses within a main class have been arranged to suit New Zealand conditions.

The source of each clause is shown at its foot in the form of a reference to the enactment repealed.

At the end of this note there is a comparative table showing where the sections of the repealed enactments have been dealt with in this Bill, and indicating those that have been omitted.

Unless in the following notes it is otherwise stated, each clause or sub-clause re-enacts the existing law without any material change in the meaning, although it may have been redrafted.

Clause 1 relates to the Short Title and the commencement of the Bill. The Bill will come into force on 1 April 1974.

Clause 2 is the interpretation clause, and includes the following new or amended definitions:

“Aircraft” has been extended to include hovercraft.

“Dangerous goods” includes the classification provision, at present a separate section. This is a drafting change only.

“Depot”, defined in the 1957 Act in relation to liquid dangerous goods and to dangerous goods other than liquids, now relates to all dangerous goods.

“Dwellinghouse” is new, and means any building (or part of a building) occupied as a residence.

Price 25c

"Flash point" was previously "flashing point", but the meaning is unchanged.

"Inspector of Dangerous Goods" or "Inspector" has been restricted by omitting the power of the Chief Inspector to appoint any person to be a temporary inspector of dangerous goods.

"Licensing authority" means a licensing authority within the meaning of clause 7 of the Bill. This clause declares in general terms that certain local authorities are to be licensing authorities. At present a licensing authority has to be specified by name in the Second Schedule to the Dangerous Goods Act 1957.

"Marking" is a new definition, introduced for drafting purposes.

"Occupier": The words "whether for pecuniary profit or not" are new, and have been introduced from revenue law to exclude the possibility of a person who is carrying on a loss-making manufacture, trade, or business, claiming that he is not an occupier for the purposes of the Bill.

"Premises" has been amended by omitting any reference to the premises being occupied before they become subject to the Bill.

"Prescribed" is a new definition, introduced for drafting purposes.

"Vehicle" is new. Although the term is used in the 1957 Act it is not defined.

Clause 3 is new, and provides that the Bill is not to apply within a defence area as defined in section 2 of the Defence Act 1971. A consequential amendment to the Defence Act 1971 contained in clause 45 of the Bill allows regulations to be made under that Act to deal with dangerous goods in defence areas.

Clause 4 is new, and provides that the Bill, except for certain specified provisions, will bind the Crown. For this purpose certain educational institutions are deemed to be the Crown.

PART I

ADMINISTRATION

Clause 5 provides that, subject to the control of the Minister of Internal Affairs, the Secretary for Internal Affairs is charged with the general administration of the Bill.

Clause 6 declares that the Chief Inspector of Explosives shall be the Chief Inspector of Dangerous Goods. The Chief Inspector is charged with the duty of carrying the Bill into effect.

Clause 7 makes provision for licensing authorities. Under the 1957 Act licensing authorities are specified in the Second Schedule to that Act, and changes to that Schedule are made by Order in Council. In this Bill certain local authorities are declared, in general terms, to be licensing authorities, and specific changes are made by the Minister of Internal Affairs by Gazette notice.

Subclause (1) provides that a local authority declared under subclause (2) to be a licensing authority, shall be the licensing authority within its district.

Subclause (2) declares that—

- (a) Every City Council and Borough Council; and
- (b) Every other local authority which immediately before the coming into force of the Bill is a licensing authority for the purposes of the Dangerous Goods Act 1957; and
- (c) Any other local authority of which the Minister gives notice in the Gazette— shall be licensing authorities.

Subclause (3) provides that the Minister may give notice in the Gazette that a local authority has ceased or shall cease to be a licensing authority.

Subclause (4) provides that the Chief Inspector shall be the licensing authority for any district, area, or place where a local authority is not the licensing authority, but he may, under subclause (5), delegate certain of his powers of licensing and inspection to another licensing authority.

The power of delegation is new.

Clause 8: Subclause (1) sets out the duties of a local licensing authority and empowers the authority to carry out these duties.

Subclause (2) provides that every local licensing authority shall be subject to the direction of the Chief Inspector in administering any regulations made under the Bill. This provision is new.

PART II

LICENSING

Clause 9 provides for the licensing of premises in which dangerous goods are stored.

Subclause (1) allows a local licensing authority to grant licences for the storage of dangerous goods within its district, subject to the payment of any prescribed fees, and subject also to application being made in such form as the licensing authority requires.

Subclause (2) allows the Chief Inspector to grant licences in any district, area, or place where he is the licensing authority.

Subclause (3) is new, and covers the situation where premises may be situated in more than one district. The Chief Inspector may designate a particular licensing authority to be the sole licensing authority for those premises.

Subclause (4) sets out the powers of a licensing authority in considering an application for a licence.

Subclause (5) provides that conditions relating to the public safety, the safety of any person, or the protection of property, may be imposed on a licensee at any time.

Subclause (6) makes it an offence to breach any condition imposed by a licence or by a licensing authority.

Clause 10 is new, and provides for the granting of provisional licences. A licensing authority may grant a provisional licence where, although the premises to be licensed do not comply in all respects with prescribed standards, the public safety, or the safety of any person or property is not prejudiced.

The date of expiry of a provisional licence is at the discretion of the licensing authority, who may also at any time amend, cancel, or confirm as a full licence any provisional licence.

Clause 11 provides general provisions relating to all licences.

Clause 12 relates to the renewal of licences.

Subclause (2) is new, and provides for the renewal of provisional licences.

Clause 13 provides that a licence may be cancelled or suspended where proceedings are taken against the holder of it.

Clause 14 provides for appeals against any decision of a licensing authority. The provision in subclause (2), whereby a Magistrate may refer the subject-matter of the appeal back to the licensing authority for re-consideration, is new.

Clause 15 substantially repeats the provisions of section 22 of the 1957 Act in relation to restrictions on the issue of licences by local licensing authorities for certain quantities of dangerous goods. The quantities are, in general, increased, and are expressed in metric terms.

Subclause (3) is new, and provides that no licence to store certain dangerous goods in bulk near an airport shall be granted unless the Chief Inspector, after consultation with the Director of the Civil Aviation Division of the Ministry of Transport, agrees to the licence being granted.

PART III

INSPECTORS OF DANGEROUS GOODS

Clause 16 provides that an Inspector of Explosives shall be an Inspector of Dangerous Goods, and shall have a duty to supervise, advise, and assist Inspectors appointed by local licensing authorities under clause 17 of the Bill.

Clause 17: Subclause (1) requires every local licensing authority to appoint Inspectors of Dangerous Goods, or to agree to share the services of an Inspector appointed by another local licensing authority.

Subclauses (3) and (4) are new, and provide for the situation where any premises or pipeline are situated in more than one licensing authority district. The Chief Inspector may decide which Inspectors are to inspect any part or the whole of the premises or pipeline.

Clause 18 makes provision for Inspectors to be appointed by Harbour Boards.

Clauses 19 to 21, which relate to the powers of Inspectors, re-enact with minor amendments most of the provisions of section 10 of the 1957 Act.

Clause 22 allows an Inspector to require of any person, in relation to the storage, carriage, and use of dangerous goods, to remedy any defect or to cease any dangerous practice.

Subclause (2), which allows the Chief Inspector to exercise the powers given under subclause (1) without making a prior inspection, is new.

Subclauses (3) and (4) are substantially new. Under the 1957 Act proceedings may be taken against an offender, but the Court may, without imposing any penalty, extend the time in which the offender may complete the work (the failure to complete being the subject of the offence).

Under these subclauses an Inspector may, within certain prescribed circumstances, extend the time to complete work without having to take the matter to Court.

Clause 23 re-enacts the provisions of Section 11 of the 1957 Act.

Clause 24 re-enacts the provisions of sections 10 (1) (h) and 10 (2) of the 1957 Act.

Subclause (2) is new. For the sake of clarity it repeats in the Bill the provisions of section 316 (5) of the Crimes Act 1961, which apply to cases of arrest without warrant.

Clause 25 provides for the protection of the Crown, local licensing authorities, and Inspectors, from any legal liability in respect of their carrying out their functions and duties under the Bill, providing they act in good faith and with reasonable care.

The clause does not relieve any of them from any liability arising from the use of a motor vehicle for transport purposes unless the liability arises from the presence of dangerous goods.

PART IV

STORAGE, PACKING, AND USE OF DANGEROUS GOODS

Clause 26 re-enacts the provisions of section 13 of the 1957 Act, and provides for restrictions on the storage and use of dangerous goods.

Clause 27 provides for the establishment of depots for the storage of dangerous goods, and substantially re-enacts provisions contained in sections 21 and 22 of the 1957 Act.

The quantities of dangerous goods which may be stored in bulk without the prior consent of the Chief Inspector are increased, and are expressed in metric terms.

Clause 28: Subclause (2) is new, and provides that no person shall offer for sale or hire, nor distribute, any container or equipment said to be suitable for dangerous goods unless the container or equipment complies with any prescribed requirements.

Clauses 29 to 32 re-enact, with minor amendments, the provisions in sections 15, 26, 27, and 28 of the 1957 Act.

PART V

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

Clause 33 provides for the reporting of accidents involving dangerous goods, and is a re-enactment, with minor amendments, of section 31 of the 1957 Act.

Clause 34, which relates to reporting incidents which create a threat of explosion or fire from the presence of dangerous goods, re-enacts the provisions of section 31A of the 1957 Act.

Clause 35 provides for the making of regulations.

Clause 36 is new, and makes provision for the Chief Inspector, in certain circumstances, to exempt any person from compliance with any regulation made under clause 35. No exemption granted shall take effect within the district of a local licensing authority without the consent of that authority.

The clause is adapted from clauses 292 and 293 of the Dangerous Goods Regulations 1958.

Clause 37 makes provision for the making of bylaws by Harbour Boards to regulate the handling and shipping of dangerous goods within harbour areas.

Clause 38 allows the Governor-General, by Order in Council, to amend the Schedule to the Act.

Clause 39 provides for offences and penalties.

Clause 40 relates to the forfeiture of dangerous goods and their containers.

Clause 41 provides for the disposal of dangerous goods seized.

Clause 42 provides that the Collector of Customs may, in certain circumstances, refuse clearance to a ship until any fines or costs imposed in connection with offences relating to dangerous goods have been paid.

Clause 43 relates to evidence.

Clause 44 is the savings clause.

Clause 45 relates to repeals, a revocation, and to consequential amendments.

10 (2) The Chief Inspector may grant licences for the storage of dangerous goods within any district, area, or place for which he is the licensing authority.

15 (3) Notwithstanding subsection (1) of this section, where any premises to which this Act applies are situated partially within the district of one licensing authority and partially within the district of another licensing authority or other licensing authorities, the Chief Inspector may designate any one of those licensing authorities to be the sole licensing authority for those premises.

20 (a) Grant the licence in accordance with the application; or

(b) Grant the licence subject to such modifications of the proposals as it or he thinks fit, having regard to the interests of public safety or the safety of any person or the protection of any property; or

25 (c) Refuse to grant the licence if it or he thinks the interests of public safety so require.

(2) For the purposes of this Act, a provisional licence granted under this section shall have the same effect as a full licence granted under section 9 of this Act, but shall expire with the day specified on the licence by the licensing authority, being any day not later than the 31st day of March next following the date on which the licence was granted.
