

POISONS BILL

EXPLANATORY NOTE

THIS Bill consolidates and amends the Poisons Act 1934 and its amendments.

This Bill is however much wider in its scope than the existing legislation. Many changes have been made and many new provisions have been included.

References to the existing statutory law are shown as footnotes to the clauses in the Bill, and a table at the end of this note indicates which of the existing provisions have been omitted and shows where the others are to be found in the Bill, either in the same form or in a modified form.

The Bill is divided into Parts as follows:

Part I—Sale and Custody of Poisons.

Part II—Importation and Carriage of Poisons.

Part III—Miscellaneous Provisions.

Clause 1 relates to the Short Title and commencement of the Bill.

Clause 2: Subclause (1) defines terms that are used throughout the Bill. Most of the terms defined are either new terms or terms which have been redefined. Attention is directed specifically to the following terms:

“Advertisement”. This term is a new definition. It includes spoken words if they are used to explain the use or notify the availability or promote the sale of any substance or preparation.

“Container”, “District Registrar”, “drug”, “label”, “officer”, “pack”, “prescription poison”, “Registrar”, “restricted poison”. These are all new definitions.

“Sale”. This term includes barter and by reference to clause 3 of the Bill also includes a disposal by way of gift, loan, or otherwise.

“Sale for extended purposes” is a term which was formerly incorporated in regulations.

“Toxic substance” is a new term with a wide meaning. It includes any substance which when swallowed is likely to be injurious to health.

Subclauses (2), (3), and (4) contain provisions required for the system of licensing proposed under this Act. Under this system licences will be personal to holders of them and they will not be issued to companies.

Clause 3 provides that the provisions of the Bill relating to the sale of any poison or poisonous substance shall, unless the context otherwise requires, apply to the disposal of any poison or poisonous substance by way of gift, loan, or otherwise. This is a new provision and it also covers the giving or distribution of any poison, in the course of business, without charge or as a sample.

Clause 4 provides for a new and wider system of grouping and classifying poisons and poisonous substances by the Governor-General, from time to time, by Order in Council. Under the Poisons Act 1934 poisons are grouped in the First, Second, and Third Schedules and poisonous substances in the Fourth Schedule to that Act. Substances can be added to and removed from those Schedules by the Governor-General from time to time by Order in Council.

Clause 5 is new and provides for the appointment of advisory and technical committees to advise the Minister.

Clause 6 provides for the appointment of an advisory committee to be known as the Poisons Committee. This committee is to be consulted before any substance is declared to be a prescription poison and before any regulations are made which—

- (a) Prohibit or restrict the sale or supply of any specified substance or class of substances except pursuant to the order or prescription of a medical practitioner, dentist, or veterinary surgeon; or
- (b) Regulate the dispensing or compounding of poisons and poisonous substances.

Clause 7 is new and provides for the appointment of officers and for their remuneration.

PART I

SALE AND CUSTODY OF POISONS

Clause 8 is more specific than the corresponding provision in the existing legislation in that it prohibits the sale of any poison unless the vendor is licensed or otherwise authorised to sell that poison. It also includes a new prohibition that no person shall pack or label any poison or poisonous substance for the purposes of sale unless that person is licensed or otherwise authorised to pack or label that poison or poisonous substance.

Clause 9 is new and prohibits the sale of any poison or poisonous substance by means of any automatic vending machine.

Clause 10 is new and, except as otherwise provided in any regulations made under this Act, prohibits the unlicensed sale or hawking of any poison or poisonous substance from house to house, or in any public place within the meaning of section 40 of the Police Offences Act 1927, or in any premises other than the vendor's regular business premises. This prohibition does not extend to sales by medical practitioners, dentists, and veterinary surgeons for the treatment of patients under their care.

Clause 11 is new and, except as otherwise provided in any regulations made under this Act, prohibits the sale of any poison to any person, except pursuant to an order given or request made by that person, or to a written prescription signed by a medical practitioner, dentist, or veterinary surgeon. This prohibition does not extend to the sale of any poison by any medical practitioner, dentist, or veterinary surgeon in the practice of his profession and for the treatment of a patient under his care, nor to the sale of any poison by any chemist to a customer in the ordinary course of business with reference to the needs expressed by that customer.

Clause 12 is in substance a new provision. Except as otherwise provided in any regulations made under this Act, it provides who may sell any poison by wholesale or for extended purposes. It also imposes certain restrictions on such sales, other than those made by an employee of the Crown or of a local authority in the course of his employment.

In particular it prohibits the sale of any poison by wholesale or for extended purposes except to a person who is licensed or otherwise lawfully entitled to sell that poison, or to whom that poison may be sold for extended purposes.

Clause 13 is in substance a new provision. Except as otherwise provided in any regulations made under this Act, it provides who may sell any poison by retail and it also imposes restrictions in certain cases.

Clause 14 is new. Except as otherwise provided in any regulations made under this Act, it provides who may pack or label any poison or poisonous substance for the purposes of sale and it also imposes restrictions in certain cases.

Clause 15 provides for the making of applications for licences. It is in part new. Applications are to be made to the District Registrars instead of to the Registrar as at present. The three types of licence provided for are a wholesaler's poison licence, a retailer's poison licence, and a packer's poison licence. Under the existing legislation the three types of licence are a wholesaler's poison licence, a storekeeper's poison licence, and a storekeeper's extended poison licence. The cases in which these last two types of licences have been issued can now be covered by the grant of a retailer's poison licence.

Clause 16 sets out the matters in respect of which a District Registrar must be satisfied before he can issue a licence. Important new requirements are that a District Registrar must be satisfied—

- (a) That the applicant has a sufficient knowledge of his obligations under the Act:
- (b) That the premises and equipment which the applicant proposes to use are suitable and adequate for the storage, packing, and handling of the poison or poisonous substances in which it is proposed to deal.

Rights of appeal against the decision of any District Registrar are conferred by clause 41.

Clause 17 is in substance a new provision. It provides the effect of each of the three types of licences which can be granted.

Clause 18 deals with the duration of licences and is in substance a new provision. The main change is that a licence must now be applied for each year. At present licences may be renewed annually.

Clause 19 is new and provides for the permanent exhibition by every licensee of his current licence.

Clause 20 re-enacts in an amended form the provisions of the existing legislation requiring the Registrar to keep a register of licences issued. The Registrar and every District Registrar is required to keep at his office a register of licences issued by him and such other registers and records as may be prescribed. The registers of licences are to be open to public inspection.

Clause 21 re-enacts in a slightly amended form the provisions of the existing legislation relating to the suspension or cancellation of licences.

Clause 22 is in substance a new provision which makes general provision regarding the containers in which any poison or poisonous substance may be packed, stored, sold, or transported in the course of any business, and the labels which such containers must bear. The provisions of the existing legislation are more detailed than those contained in this Bill. It is proposed to include all the detailed requirements in connection with these matters in regulations.

Clause 23 re-enacts in a more general form the provisions of the existing legislation relating to the keeping of records of sales of poisons. Subject to the provisions of any regulations which may be made, every person who sells any poison is required to keep such records as may be prescribed. The existing legislation only provides for records to be kept of certain retail sales. Provision for the keeping of records of certain other sales is at present contained in regulations.

Clause 24 re-enacts the provisions of the existing legislation which make it an offence for any person to have any poison or poisonous substance in his charge or possession (whether for the purposes of sale or otherwise howsoever) otherwise than in a container conforming to the relevant requirements of the Act or of any regulations made under it. It is however provided that it shall be a defence to a charge under this section if the person charged proves that at the time of the alleged offence the poison or poisonous substance was in the container in which he acquired it, and that the container bore the label borne on it when it was acquired, or that at the time of the alleged offence the poison or poisonous substance had been necessarily removed from its container for the effective and lawful use of that poison or poisonous substance.

Clause 25 re-enacts provisions at present appearing in regulations specifying certain places where poisons and poisonous substances may not be stored, packed, or prepared for use.

Clause 26 is new and imposes restrictions on the possession of any prescription poison or any restricted poison.

Clause 27 is new and provides that every person who intends to import or manufacture or prepare any toxic substance which has not previously been either imported into or manufactured or prepared in New Zealand shall, before so importing, manufacturing or preparing it, notify the Registrar in writing of his intention and supply him with certain particulars. This action does not have to be taken if the substance is registered or provisionally registered as an agricultural chemical under the Agricultural Chemicals Act 1959 or as a stock remedy under the Stock Remedies Act 1934.

The Registrar may also from time to time require any importer, proprietor, or seller of any toxic substance, including an agricultural chemical, to furnish the same particulars in respect of that substance together with particulars of any sale of that substance which has taken place within the preceding three years.

All information given pursuant to these provisions must, if the person giving it so requests, be treated by the Registrar as confidential, except for certain specified purposes.

Clause 28 is new and gives the Minister power to prohibit the importation, manufacture, sale, possession, or use of any specified toxic substance for a period not exceeding one year, subject to the proviso that this power may not be exercised more than once in respect of any substance so specified.

Clause 29 is new and provides for the control of advertisements which sellers may make relating to any substance being a poison or a poisonous substance or a toxic substance or a preparation containing any poison or poisonous substance or toxic substance.

Clause 30 is new and gives wide powers of entry and inspection to officers. Officers are also authorised to mark, seal, or otherwise secure, or impound any poison or poisonous substance and any foodstuff or stock food or any article whatsoever in certain circumstances, provided that no officer may exercise any of these powers in any case to which clause 36 of this Bill applies except at the request of an officer of Customs.

Power to deal with things which have been marked, sealed, secured, or impounded, including the power to destroy them, is provided. The power of destruction is subject to certain safeguards.

Unless the Court orders otherwise under clause 32, the owner of the thing dealt with is liable to the Crown for the reasonable costs and expenses of any action taken. This does not affect any right of action which the owner may have against any other person.

Clause 31 is new and empowers officers to mark, seal, or otherwise secure any land or premises, or any vessel, aircraft, or vehicle or any part of any premises, vessel, aircraft, or vehicle, if they have reason to suspect that it may have been contaminated by any poison or poisonous substance or toxic substance. Where such action is taken the officer or the District Registrar must arrange decontamination or cleansing as soon as practicable. Unless the Court orders otherwise, under clause 32, the owner of the land, premises, vessel, aircraft, or vehicle in question is liable to the Crown for the reasonable costs and expenses of such decontamination or cleansing. This does not affect any right of action which the owner may have against any other person.

The clause also prohibits entry into or upon any land, premises, vessel, aircraft, vehicle or part thereof that has been marked, sealed, or secured, unless such entry is authorised by an officer or the Registrar, or the District Registrar, unless the entry is urgently necessary by reason of emergency.

Clause 32 is new and provides for the making of applications to a Magistrate's Court for certain orders by any person claiming any estate or interest in any real or personal property marked, sealed, secured, or impounded under clauses 30 and 31. The orders which the Court can make are specified.

Clause 33 is new and provides for the obtaining by officers of samples from any person selling or making or packing, or using in any manufacturing, industrial, or other process, any substance, being a poison or a poisonous substance or a toxic substance. Where the substance is also a drug and the sample is taken for the purpose of analysis, it must be taken in accordance with the procedure laid down in the Food and Drugs Act 1947.

PART II

IMPORTATION AND CARRIAGE OF POISONS

The clauses contained in this Part have been redrafted but no substantial changes have been made in the existing law.

PART III

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

Clause 39 is new and provides for the notification of the District Registrar where in any hospital under the control of a Hospital Board any person who is attended by any medical practitioner employed or engaged by the Board is found to be suffering from poisoning.

It is also provided that every Registrar of Births and Deaths who in his official capacity becomes aware that any deceased person was affected by poisoning shall notify the District Registrar of the death and of the fact that the person was so affected.

Clause 40 is new and gives any District Registrar the power to require information from any person if in his opinion there is reasonable ground for suspecting that that person is in possession of any poison or poisonous substance or toxic substance for the purpose of sale, or for the purpose of manufacturing any preparation for sale, or for use in his trade or calling, in breach of this Act or of any regulations made under this Act. Except for the purposes of carrying into effect the provisions of the Act every officer is required to maintain the secrecy of all matters which come to his knowledge in the performance of his official duties under this section.

Clause 41 is new and provides that the Registrar may, for the purpose of protecting the public, publish statements relating to any poison or poisonous substance or toxic substance or to any matter contained or implied in advertisements relating to any of the same. Such statements are privileged and there is no right of appeal from the decision of the Registrar to publish any such statement.

The Director-General of Health has somewhat similar powers under section 9 of the Medical Advertisements Act 1942 in connection with any matter contained or implied in medical advertisements.

Clause 42 is new and gives a right of appeal (except in certain specified cases) to every person who is directly affected by any decision or requirement of the Registrar or of any District Registrar.

Clause 43 is new and prohibits the publication in any "newspaper" of the name of any poison alleged to have been used or intended to be used in an attempt to commit suicide or for a criminal purpose, or any particulars that are sufficient to identify that poison before the expiration of a period of five years from the date of the final disposal of the proceedings under section 126A of the Health Act or of the charge, as the case may be.

Clause 44 is new and provides protection from civil or criminal proceedings for any person who does any act in pursuance or intended pursuance of any of the provisions of the Act, unless he acts in bad faith or without reasonable care.

Clause 45 is new and provides that it is an offence to wilfully obstruct, hinder, resist, or deceive any person in the execution of the powers conferred on that person by or pursuant to the Act.

Clause 46 is new and makes it an offence to aid, incite, counsel, or procure, in New Zealand, the doing or omission in any place outside New Zealand of any act, if that act or omission—

- (a) Is punishable under the provisions of any law corresponding to this Act and in force in that place; or
- (b) Would if it occurred in New Zealand constitute an offence against this Act.

In this second case it is a defence if the person charged proves that the act or omission referred to was not an offence under the law of the place where it occurred or was to occur.

Clause 47 re-enacts with consequential amendments the provisions of the existing legislation relating to false statements. The fine which can be imposed for this offence has however been increased from one hundred to two hundred pounds. The penalties which can now be imposed are either imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months or a fine not exceeding two hundred pounds.

Clause 48 prescribes general offences.

Clause 49 prescribes the general penalty for offences. The penalty is now a fine not exceeding two hundred pounds (as opposed to ten pounds under the existing legislation), and if the offence is a continuing one a further fine not exceeding five pounds a day.

Clause 50 requires all offences to be dealt with summarily. It also provides that the period of limitation for the laying of informations for offences against this Act or against regulations made under this Act shall be four years.

Clause 51 re-enacts with consequential amendments the provisions of the existing legislation relating to the liability of a principal for certain acts of his agents or servants.

Clause 52 re-enacts the provisions of the existing legislation requiring particulars of the conviction of any medical practitioner, chemist, dentist, or veterinary surgeon to be notified to the appropriate registrar of the profession concerned.

Clause 53 authorises the making of regulations.

Clause 54 contains special provisions as to regulations.

Clause 55 provides that this Act shall bind the Crown, except that it shall not apply to the New Zealand Armed Forces or the members thereof while they are acting in the course of their duties.

Clause 56: Subclause (1) repeals certain enactments. Subclause (2) makes a consequential amendment to the Rabbits Act 1955. Subclause (3) is the usual savings provision.
