

WANGANUI COMPUTER CENTRE AMENDMENT BILL

EXPLANATORY NOTE

THIS Bill amends the Wanganui Computer Centre Act 1976. The main purpose of the Bill is to enable the existing User Departments (Police, Justice, and Transport) to make greater use of the computer system established in connection with the Computer Centre and thereby minimise the duplication of computer equipment in those Departments. The use of the system by those Departments for storage, processing, and retrieval of information other than law enforcement information will be unrestricted. However its use for storage, processing, and retrieval of law enforcement information will continue to be subject to restrictions that safeguard the privacy of the individual.

Clause 1 relates to the Short Title.

Clause 2 substitutes a new definition section in the principal Act. The new definitions are "audit", "Computer Centre", "computer system", "law enforcement information", "remote terminal", and "User Departments".

Clause 3 repeals sections 3, 3A, and 4 of the principal Act and substitutes new sections 3, 3A, 4 and 4A to 4E.

Section 3 relates to the establishment of the Computer Centre and the associated computer system.

Subsection (1) continues both the Computer Centre and the associated computer system.

Subsection (2) gives a legal description of the computer system. The system consists of the central mainframe computers and associated memory devices at Wanganui but no longer includes the remote terminals.

Subsection (3) allows other computer installations to be located with the computer system and linked to it.

Section 3A relates to the management of the Computer Centre.

Subsection (1) makes the Minister responsible for the Computer Centre.

Subsection (2) requires the Minister to enter into any necessary agreements or arrangements to ensure that the Computer Centre is properly managed and the necessary services are available to the User Departments.

Subsection (3) specifies conditions that apply to every agreement and arrangement entered into under subsection (2).

Paragraph (a) provides that the Crown owns all applications programmes relating to law enforcement information, data bases relating to law enforcement information, and law enforcement information itself (while it is stored on the computer system).

Paragraph (b) enables the Minister to give directions to other parties to any such agreement or arrangement and obliges such parties to forthwith comply with such directions.

Paragraph (c) obliges all parties to any such agreement or arrangement to observe at all times the provisions of the Act.

Subsection (4) provides that the conditions specified in subsection (3) are deemed to be included in every such agreement or arrangement.

Section 4 relates to the use of the computer system.

Subsection (1) specifies the uses to which the system may be put.

Subsection (2) enables the existing User Departments to use the system for storage, processing, and retrieval of any information, subject to compliance with sections 4B and 4D.

Subsection (3) enables the organisation responsible for the management of the Computer Centre to replace parts of the system, add parts to the system, withdraw parts from service, use temporary connections and temporary linkages in connection with the system, and give demonstrations.

Subsection (4) provides that anything installed in or added to the system becomes part of it and anything withdrawn from it ceases to be part of it.

Subsection (5) provides that, where a data base containing law enforcement information is withdrawn from service, it must be either destroyed or retained.

Section 4A relates to the use of remote terminals. (For the purposes of the Act, "remote terminal" means any computer used to access the computer system).

Subsection (1) enables the User Departments to use remote terminals. There is no limit on the number which a Department may have.

Subsection (2) provides for the Wanganui Computer Centre Policy Committee to prescribe guidelines governing the placement and use of remote terminals.

Subsection (3) requires the chief executive of each User Department to ensure that the guidelines are complied with.

Subsection (4) enables the User Departments to determine where their remote terminals are to be placed but imposes a requirement to certify that each new placement complies with the Policy Committee's guidelines governing placement of remote terminals.

Section 4B relates to restrictions on the storage and retrieval of law enforcement information.

Subsection (1) specifies who may retrieve law enforcement information stored on the computer system.

Subsection (2) provides that the Policy Committee must determine the maximum periods for which law enforcement information may be stored on the system.

Subsection (3) requires the User Departments to comply with such determinations.

Section 4C relates to the storage, processing, and retrieval of information other than law enforcement information. The section enables the existing User Departments and the organisation responsible for the management of the Computer Centre to use the computer system for storage, processing, and retrieval of information other than law enforcement information, subject to compliance with section 4D.

Section 4D relates to restrictions on retrieval of information other than law enforcement information and specifies who may retrieve such information from the computer system.

Section 4E provides for authorised local authorities to use the computer system.

Clause 4 effects a consequential amendment to section 9 of the principal Act (which relates to the functions and powers of the Commissioner).

Clause 5 amends section 16A of the principal Act (which relates to evidence) by effecting a consequential change to subsection (2) (a) and omitting from subsection (4) a reference to the State Services Act 1962 (now the State Sector Act 1988).

Clause 6 amends section 19 of the principal Act (which relates to the Wanganui Computer Centre Policy Committee).

Subclause (1) relates to membership of the Policy Committee and replaces the General Manager of the Government Computing Service with the chief executive of the organisation responsible for the management of the Computer Centre.

Subclause (2) makes the Privacy Commissioner a member of the Policy Committee.

Subclause (3) enables the chief executive of each of the existing User Departments to be represented at meetings of the Policy Committee by a senior employee of the Department concerned.

Subclause (4) enables the chief executive of the organisation responsible for the management of the Computer Centre to be represented at meetings of the Policy Committee by a senior officer of that organisation.

Clause 7 effects a consequential amendment to section 21 (2) of the principal Act (which relates to meetings of the Policy Committee).

Clause 8 amends section 23 of the principal Act (which relates to the Wanganui Computer Centre Management Committee).

Subclause (1) relates to membership of the Management Committee and replaces the General Manager of the Government Computing Service with the chief executive of the organisation responsible for the management of the Computer Centre.

Subclause (2) provides for the election of a Chairman and a Deputy Chairman.

Subclause (3) enables the chief executive of each of the existing User Departments to be represented at meetings of the Management Committee by a senior employee of the Department concerned.

Subclause (4) enables the chief executive of the organisation responsible for the management of the Computer Centre to be represented at meetings of the Management Committee by a senior officer of that organisation.

Clause 9 repeals section 24 of the principal Act (which relates to services for the Policy Committee and the Management Committee), and substitutes a new section. The new section provides for the State Services Commission to service the Policy Committee but makes no provision in relation to the Management Committee.

Clause 10 effects consequential amendments to subsections (1), (2), and (5B) of section 27 of the principal Act (which relates to processing of information).

Clause 11 effects a consequential amendment to section 27A (2) of the principal Act (which relates to duplicates of tapes and discs).

Clause 12 effects consequential amendments to section 29 (2) of the principal Act (which relates to offences) and makes unlawful use of law enforcement information obtained from the computer system an offence.

Clause 13 repeals section 30 of the principal Act (which relates to Orders in Council), and substitutes a new section.

The new section recasts the original section in an expanded and clearer form. It effectively empowers the Governor-General in Council to extend the uses which User Departments may make of information stored on the computer system.

Clauses 14 and 15 effect consequential amendments to the principal Act.

Clause 16 amends the Schedule to the principal Act (which relates to information authorised for storage on the computer system and Departments that have access to the information). In the Part headed Police Department Records the items relating to property and statistics are omitted and new items relating to deportation orders, and non-violence orders and non-molestation orders are inserted. In the Part headed Ministry of Transport Records local authorities authorised under section 4E are added to the list of the User Departments that have access to the drivers' licences register and the motor vehicles register. The item in the Part headed General relating to message switching is also omitted.

Clause 17 effects consequential repeals.
