Meteorological Observations at Kelburn, Wellington, for the Month of May, 1941. Observations taken at 9 a.m.

Mean earth temperature at 1 ft., 52°; at 3 ft., 55°. Number of rain days, 11. Total rainfall, 15 per cent. below normal. Sunshine, 43 per cent. of the possible. There were five days when no bright sunshine was recorded. Mean dew-point, 30°; mean vapour pressure, 19·2 mmb.

Note—Fog occurred on two occasions, and there were two white frosts. Northerly winds and mild weather predominated.

General Notes.—Most districts experienced a fair share of pleasant weather during May. Conditions were normal for stock and crops. With grains still making appreciable growth there is strength of the winter reserve, so that calls on winter reserves have been very few. Extensive areas have been sown in wheat, and linen-flax sowings show an increase on those of last year.

Rainfall was below normal over a large proportion of the Dominion. The greatest deficiencies occurred in the Auckland Province, where rainfalls were generally under half the normal, while many stations, but more especially those with an easterly aspect, received less than quarter the normal falls. Deficiencies of more than 50 per cent. occurred also in an area from the Marlborough Sounds to Bay of Islands, and the Waikato, Waipa, and Waikato flats. Widespread rain occurred in western districts from the 26th to 28th, and from the 30th to 31st. There were numerous slips, bridges sustained damage, and on some farms the loss of stock was serious. Rainfall was also considerably below normal over a large proportion of the South Island and in the high country elsewhere.

Mean temperatures were rather mild, but many of the nights were chilly, with frosts numerous. With the passage of westerly depressions from the 11th to 14th, west or north-west winds predominated and conditions were fine generally by the 6th. A list of 5th gave change of strong southerlies, accompanied by some showers, on the 7th and 8th, but pressure rose rapidly and conditions improved. The last south-westerly depression on the 20th the weather cleared and winds decreased, consequently some severe frosts were registered. There was then a period of considerable cloudiness, with an anticyclonic settlement. Between the 23rd and 27th, the weather was settled, with occasional showers. On the 28th, there were extensive north-easterly winds, with increasing cloud, and showers. The month ended with some showers, but the temperature remained rather high, with a maximum of 21° on the 31st, and a minimum of 4° on the 29th.
