Operational Awards approved by His Majesty the King

Office of the Minister of Defence, Wellington, 9th October, 1944.

His Majesty the King has been graciously pleased to approve the following immediate awards, in recognition of gallantry and devotion to duty in air operations:

Distinguished Flying Cross

Flight Lieutenant Ross Stuart McHardy (NZ 402882), Royal New Zealand Air Force, of Auckland.

With a keen wind whippings the sea into broken-topped swells too high to enable rescue launches to operate, this captain of a Catalina flying boat was responsible, on 30th June, 1944, for a masterly rescue of the crew of an Allied dive-bomber aircraft forced down at sea some twenty miles off Guadalcanal. The two survivors, an American pilot and his radio-man, had been located earlier, and an effort was made to rescue them, but the sea was too rough to enable the prospective rescuers to put their flying-boat down, and also prevented small surface craft from operating. Flight Lieutenant McHardy was then detailed to undertake the rescue, and by his skill and courage succeeded in what had seemed a hopeless enterprise. In spite of the real risk of damage to the aircraft, a landing was made along the top of the swell, and the aircraft was allowed to drift back up the side of the wave from which two men were picked up. Their dinghy was also salvaged, and the Catalina, although damaged by the pounding it had received, was flown back to base after a skilful open-water take off. Flight Lieutenant McHardy's achievement was typical of the determination in the execution of a large number of air operations, including attacks on shipping, radar buildings, and railway systems. On one occasion he was wounded and his aircraft badly damaged, but he flew to base and made a successful landing.

HIS Majesty the King has been graciously pleased to approve the following awards in recognition of gallantry and devotion to duty in air operations against the enemy:

Distinguished Flying Cross

Flight Lieutenant Ross Stuart McHardy (NZ 402882), Royal New Zealand Air Force, of Auckland.

Flight Lieutenant James Roy Dullen (NZ 416462), Royal New Zealand Air Force, of Auckland.

Flight Lieutenant Lloyd Elliott (NZ 401204), Royal New Zealand Air Force, of Auckland.

Flight Lieutenant Arnold Thane King (NZ 42413), Royal New Zealand Air Force, of Wellington.

Flight Lieutenant Mervyn James Sparks (NZ 417128), Royal New Zealand Air Force, of Auckland.

NOTE.—At stations where departures from normal are in parentheses the record has been maintained for less than ten years in the case of temperatures and for less than twenty years in the case of the rainfall and the normals are partly interpolated.
NOTES ON THE WEATHER FOR OCTOBER, 1944

General.—October was a cool and windy month with very changeable weather conditions. There were no really settled spells, although conditions were fairly pleasant in some of the eastern districts sheltered from the prevailing north-westerly winds. In the main northern dairying districts growth was good, but in the South Island growth generally is later than usual and cultivation is rather backward.

Rainfall.—The variations of the month’s rainfall totals from normal were complex. The drier part of the North Island extended from the Wairarapa northward, including most of the central high country to Opoiti and beyond Gisborne. Several places near the east coast received less than half the usual October fall. The remainder of the island was wetter than usual, very noticeably so over most of Auckland, Taranaki, and near Whangarei. East of the King Country totals were well over double the average, as well as the far south-west corner of the South Island, had excess rain. Other parts of the South Island were drier than usual, the percentage deficiencies being greatest near Timaru and Oamaru.

Temperature.—Mean temperatures were slightly above normal between Ashburton and Christchurch, and rather more so in the more northern and eastern portions of the North Island, the departure being about 2°F. near Hastings. Elsewhere, it was cooler than usual, there being departures of over 2°F. in Nelson, Dunedin, and Central Otago.

Western depressions soon set in, one associated cold front passed over the South Island during the 9th and 10th, north-west easterlies being strong or gale force at times in central and southern districts, with rain in Westland. Another cold front crossed the South Island on the 11th, with some further north-west gales ahead of it. A depression developed on this front and crossed south-eastward across the middle of the South Island on the 12th. Rain occurred in many western districts and was heavy in the ranges. Finally, the cold south-west easterly change brought showers up the east coast and snow to the ranges. With an anticyclone advancing on to northern New Zealand on the 13th winds moderated in the evening, causing very sharp frosts overnight in Central Otago.

A very marked pressure trough passed from the west on the 15th accompanied by some heavy showers, north-west easterlies being strong at times in many places. A high-pressure wedge following gave a brief improvement on the 16th. A depression from the Central Tasman Sea deepened on the 18th in the Southland region and then moved rapidly away to the south-east. There were north-west gales from Taranaki southward, with rather heavy rain in the southern high country. Another depression south of the South Island on the 19th, was west of the North Island on the 20th, remaining there until it filled up on the 23rd. It associated cold front passed over the country on the 21st, bringing heavy rain, and heavy falls of snow further north where strong north-westerlies prevailed. Apart from some thunderstorms on the 22nd conditions were finally improving in the north on the 23rd and 24th. On the latter date a cold front began to cross New Zealand, bringing fresh south-westerlies and some showers to most districts, with some southerly easterly storms occurred in the ranges. An anticyclone following intensified over the Dominion, so that settled weather prevailed by the 25th.

By the 27th there was much drizzle and fog in the west, especially between Nelson and the Waikato. Ahead of a cold front associated with a deep depression passing far to the south on the 28th, north-west easterlies increased, and overnight there were widespread gales, these being unusually strong in Marlborough, where hundreds of trees were uprooted. The rainfall, except in the more exposed localities, was rather light or moderate. During the 29th the weather cleared considerably, winds moderating sufficiently to give moderate frosts in several districts that night. On the 30th an anticyclone was approaching, giving fair weather except for a slight deterioration about Southland on the 31st as westerly depressions passed far to the south.
