Logs will be subdivided into three classes, and definitions of those classes and upset prices are as follows—

1. Logs—over 6 ft. in. centre girth outside bark measurement, and more than 20 per cent. of gross volume allowed as deduction for defects.

2. Logs—between 6 ft. 6 in. and 9 ft. 6 in. in. centre girth outside bark measurement, with not more than 25 per cent. of gross volume as allowed as deduction for defects.

The sureties may be by marked cheque, inscribed stock, Government bonds, or in other form, acceptable to the Commissioner. The deposit and the sureties (if in cash) will be invested in an approved manner, and the accrued interest will be paid to the purchaser from time to time.

(NOTE.—It is estimated that the capital necessary to finance this project successfully will be not less than £40,000.)

Measurement of Logs

Logs will be measured by officers of the State Forest Service, and the quantities of timber in cubic feet will be assessed from the measurement made on each log of its girth at mid-length outside back to the nearest complete inch, fractions being omitted, and its length to the nearest whole foot, at least 6 feet in length, and the volume being calculated in accordance with the New Zealand State Forest Service Log Scale. Although logs will be delivered at the conclusion of milling operations in the longest possible lengths suitable for transporting, the maximum log length for measurement purposes will be 24 (twenty-four) ft., and longer lengths will be calculated as two or more separate fogs of approximately equal length, save that no butt logs will be measured at a point less than 7 ft. from the butt end.

An allowance of 4 in. for crosscutting will be made on logs ranging from 24 (twenty-four) ft. to 33 (thirty-three) ft. in length, and on account of each complete 16 (sixteen) foot log length obtainable from logs of a length of 23 (thirty-three) ft. or more, and the Forest Officer will make such deductions for defective logs as in his opinion are reasonable, and in cases of dispute the Conservator’s decision shall be final.
