LATE RETURNS

NOTE.—At stations where departures from normal are in parentheses the record has been maintained for less than ten years in the case of temperatures and for less than two years in the case of the rainfall and the normals are partly interpolated.

Notes on the Weather for June, 1948

General.—On the whole June was a favourable month. Although several depressions passed over or close to New Zealand, the storm of the 26th was the only one to reach dangerous proportions, and it travelled too rapidly to cause any appreciable damage. In the South Island, due to low rainfall and only light frosts, the soil remained workable, while autumn-sown crops are doing well. In central districts of the North Island feed is very scarce following the autumn drought, but elsewhere stock is in good condition.

Rainfall.—Over the greater part of the North Island rainfall was somewhat below average, except near Cape Kidnappers and north of a line from Wairau to Rotorua. Slight excesses were also recorded near Nelson and in parts of Southland. Totals were below half the average in North Otago and in most of Canterbury and Marlborough.

Temperature.—Mean temperatures were slightly above average in Nelson and in the area from Tarzansko across to the Bay of Plenty.

Departures elsewhere were negative, but were only of the order of one degree. Except in the Auckland Province frosts were fewer in number and less severe than usual.

South Auckland.—With the approach of another large depression from the north-west on the 24th winds returned to the northerly quarter, and widespread but not excessive, only negligible amounts penetrating east of the ranges. A temporary improvement on the 22nd followed a change to south-westers.

North Island.—With this approach of another large depression from the north-west on the 24th winds returned to the northerly quarter, and widespread rain again developed. One centre crossed the Wellington Province on the morning of the 26th. It passed over the Chatham Islands twenty-four hours later when a secondary centre speeding on an easterly course was over Rotorua. Conditions improved temporarily on the 26th, although showers occurred in many places.

A deep disturbance approached rapidly from the west on the 27th, the centre being close to Southland by that afternoon. Another centre farther to the north deepened considerably and, moving rapidly eastwards, crossed North Taranaki and Hawke's Bay during the evening of the 28th. During its passage heavy rain fell in the North Island. South-westers then prevailed, increasing to gale force in many places north of Cook Strait.

The next anticyclone headed to the north of New Zealand, while a very deep depression passed far to the south. Winds decreased somewhat, but changeable south-westerly conditions persisted, the weather being showery in western and southern districts of the South Island but mainly fine elsewhere.
