

"Provided that if the claimant has incurred expenditure in replacing any such articles, a refund of the amount so expended may, subject to these regulations, be awarded to the personal representatives of the claimant.

"988. Where a claim for compensation under these regulations in respect of the loss of any article has been satisfied, whether by payment or by replacement, and that article is subsequently recovered, the officer or soldier concerned shall forthwith return to the Army Department any articles issued in replacement thereof or reimburse that Department with the value of the article so issued, or, as the case may be, refund the amount of compensation paid in respect of the article so recovered:

"Provided that, if the article so recovered is in a damaged condition, the officer or soldier may claim compensation in respect of that damage at any time within thirty days after the date of its recovery.

"989. The procedure to be followed in making a claim for compensation under these regulations, the information to be included in any such claim, the procedure by investigating officers on completion of their investigation of a claim, the method of assessment of compensation, whether by payment or by replacement, and the conditions to apply to the awarding and satisfaction of compensation, shall be as prescribed by Army Standing Orders."
