Notice at stations where departures from normal are in parentheses, the temperature record has been maintained for less than ten years, the rainfall record for less than twenty years. Rainfall normals have been revised and now refer to the standard period 1921–50. Where observations are not available for the whole period, or where the site of the station has been changed, the records have been interpolated.

Notes on the Weather for December 1954

General.—It was a dull, wet month in most eastern districts, but comparatively dry, warm, and sunny in Westland. The two months to December and January were also reported as being colder than normal. The 12th day was marked by a storm which caused considerable damage from the 20th to the 23rd, and they were welcomed by farmers and stockmen. However, on the West Coast in Southland, and in Central and West Otago, farmers were still finding the weather too dry.

The rainfall was near to or over normal over most of the remainder of the country north of the Buller River and also in coastal districts from Waimate to Balclutha. However, on the West Coast in Southland, and in Central and West Otago the rain was below average. In some districts, especially Northland and West Otago, farmers were still finding the weather too dry.

Elsewhere temperatures were close to or slightly above normal. The Tasman Sea was more than two degrees warmer than usual over the greater part of Auckland Province, in Nelson and Westland, and in the Lakes District of Otago and Southland. Elsewhere, temperatures were close to or slightly above normal.

Sunshine.—Except in Northland, Westland, and Central and West Otago, sunshine was below normal, mainly by about an hour a day. In central districts from Wairarapa to Wellington it was one of the dullest December on record, with a deficiency exceeding fifty hours.

"Honey in the comb" means either—
