100 (1)	Salicyloazosulphapyridine	202-4/294/28
164	*Hoods made up from cellophane strips rolled in tubular form or from reed (rush), straw, or similar materials, by laying the single pieces (unplaited) side by side and sewing them together by threads radiating from the crown to the brim (which has a finished edge), whether or not blocked, but not otherwise worked, when declared by a manufacturer that they will be blocked and used by him in making hats.	202-5/4
164	*Hoods and hat shapes (but not berets), woven, plaited, or crocheted, unblocked or partially blocked, not sewn, cut, or otherwise worked, made from sisal, hemp, straw, rush, pandanus leaf, or other vegetable material (including paper or cellophane imitations of such materials), even if including a proportion of wool, when declared by a manufacturer that they will be blocked and used by him in making hats. NOTES— (1) Hoods and hat shapes in which the edges are stitched merely to prevent fraying; and hoods and hat shapes assembled from straw plait by means of strings running through the plait, are not regarded as sewn. (2) Hoods and hat shapes which otherwise qualify for entry under the above decision will not be disqualified merely because the surface texture of the basic material has been changed by the all-over addition thereto (even by sewing) of other material.
