The Indecent Publications Act 1963

In the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application to the Tribunal for a decision regarding the book My Life and Loves, by Frank Harris, published by Transworld Publishers Ltd., of Bashley Road, London.

DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL

LEAVE to submit the book to the Tribunal was granted by the Minister of Justice. We have considered the matter accordingly. Mr Heron appeared in support of the application. The Justice Department was represented but made no submissions.

The Tribunal has considered the formidable collection of five volumes originally published in Great Britain, by W. H. Allen, but now published as a “paper back” by Corgi Books entitled My Life and Loves. Harris lived from 1855 to 1931. His reminiscences, colourful and at times flamboyant, recreate many aspects of the life of his time — his experiences (or fantasies, for some of his extravagant claims regarding the book published by Transworld Publishers Ltd., of Bashley Road, London).

My Life and Loves. Harris lived from 1855 to 1931.

Many passages in the book deal with the author's sexual experiences (or fantasies, for some of his extravagant claims in the field of seduction may have been the result of sexual frustration). In these detailed repetitive accounts he represents himself as a successful Don Juan, indefatigable, and with little or no compunction in his search for conquests.

Isolated, the descriptions could be regarded as undesirably stimulating to young minds, but they are rather lost in a mass of quite unexceptionable material and they do not exhibit cruelty, violence, or the grosser perversions.

2. The Tribunal takes notice that copies of the Corgi Edition have been selling freely for many months without apparent objection. The retail price 15s., is relevant and we have taken account of it. Our decision however rests primarily on subsection (2) of section 11 of the statute.

In our opinion the book is not likely to deprave and its circulation is in the interests of literature and learning: we do not think its availability should be restricted, and accordingly we are not prepared to classify the book as indecent.

K. M. GRESSON, Chairman.
