Decision of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

In the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by the Secretary for Justice for a decision in respect of the booklet Love in Plain Language by Robert Chatham, Ph.D., published by Wilson and Horton Ltd., New Zealand.

DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL.

Love in Plain Language by Robert Chatham, is a reprint in booklet form of a series of articles which were published in Thursday, a fortnightly magazine, earlier in 1971. The booklet was submitted to the Tribunal by the Secretary for Justice, and it became clear at the hearing that he did so in response to a complaint from Miss P. M. Bartlett.

At the hearing Mr G. W. Alderdice appeared on instructions from Miss Bartlett, who sought under section 14 (6) of the Act to appear as a party to the proceedings. Under this subsection a person who can satisfy the Tribunal that he is a person likely to be affected by the refusal may be joined as a party to the proceedings in any particular hearing and has the right to call evidence and make representations.

The application was refused by the Tribunal but Mr Moody, who appeared for Justice, agreed to put Miss Bartlett's written submissions in evidence. The grounds for the refusal were two. First, the simple concern of any member of the public (even if substantiated by membership of a particular society) is a general one and far less than that for which a public complaint is required. Second, if the Tribunal is to be able to consider the expression "likely to be affected", which in the context means likely to be affected by the hearing and decision on an application about a particular book, Miss Bartlett would, for example, the author or distributor of the book in question, nor was her counsel able to establish that she was likely to be affected by this particular hearing in a way in which the public in general would not be affected. Second, Miss Bartlett having engendered the application by the Secretary for Justice, must be deemed to have come to a decision to allow him to proceed rather than to seek leave to proceed herself in accordance with section 14 (2) of the Act. The existence of section 14 (6) is to make sure that no one with a genuine and particular interest in the hearing or its outcome will lose his right to be heard. It is the role of the submissions in evidence.

Miss Bartlett's submissions and a letter in support from Dr R. F. Desmond, were put in evidence by Mr Moody on behalf of the Department of Justice. They have been taken into account by the Tribunal in reaching its decision. We would, however, make some comment about the handling of cases submitted by the Department of Justice on a complaint by a member of the public. When the Comptroller of Customs or the Secretary for Justice submits a book to the Tribunal for classification, as either is entitled to do under the Act, it is understandable and indeed perfectly acceptable, that he will not normally wish to make submissions. Where, however, the origin of the submission is a public complaint which, so to speak, the Department has accepted, the Tribunal would be greatly assisted if the Department made a statement explaining why it is submitting the complaint. If it is not, in fact, supporting the complainant, it should be left to the complainant to handle the matter before the Tribunal under section 14 (2) of the Act. At the least, we consider, the Department should call the complainant in evidence.

Mr R. A. Heron appeared for Wilson and Horton Ltd., the publishers of the booklet and also of Thursday. In his submission he drew attention to the previous history of the magazine series and to the association of Wilson and Horton with Family Doctor magazine, sponsored by the British Medical Association, which had included a variety of articles on sexual matters. He also made it plain that the decision to reprint in booklet form was taken because of the unsatisfied demand after the appearance of the series in Thursday.

The Tribunal considers the booklet to contain a plain, even prosaic, presentation of sexual information in an easily understood and objective manner. The Tribunal noted that sex is not a place for information of this kind to be widely available and it cannot be said that Love in Plain Language deals with sex in a manner injurious to the public good. After careful consideration it was decided not to impose any age restriction: the Tribunal noted that the cover states that the publication is not recommended for sale to persons 15 years or under without their parents' or guardians' consent. If the booklet should happen to fall into the hands of younger persons it is unlikely that they would be harmed by it; it is better to have sex information imparted in a factual manner rather than in the haphazard fashion which, to judge by some of the correspondence appearing in Thursday at the time of the original publication, is still all too prevalent.

The Tribunal classifies this book as not indecent.

R. S. V. SIMPSON, Chairman.

Decision of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

In the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by the Comptroller of Customs for decisions in respect of the following books: Lesbians, anonymous, Big Boots, anonymous, Over 42, No. 3, anonymous, King Size Tops, anonymous, Pictorial Pornography, Vol. 3, anonymous, Kibblers, No. 3, by Gilbert Oakley, p.s.v., and Unusual Sex in Pictures, by James D. Williams with Dr
The effect of this device is to heighten the grotesqueness and crudity of the photographs. In some of the books the title, the text, and the photographs have no relationship to one another and the photographs have an air of utter unreality. These books do not appear to have any honesty of purpose but seem to have been produced as straight pornography.

The Tribunal classifies these books as indecent.

31 January 1972.

R. S. V. SIMPSON, Chairman.

Decision of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

In the matter of a reference to the Tribunal under section 12 (1) of the said Act by the Magistrate's Court at Wellington for a decision in respect of the book Older Women and Younger Girls by Ward Cleaver, published by Bens Books Ltd., London.

There was no appearance of the applicant. Mr Downey, solicitor, appeared on behalf of the intended importer but did not make submissions.

DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL

This book contains a certain amount of text very little of which is of any value. The two models are nude except for slight genital coverings. Three models are shown on the cover in full colour, engaged in lesbian contact. The purpose of the book appears to be to exploit prurient curiosity. It could do no good and might do harm.

The Tribunal classifies this book as indecent.
