Decision of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

In the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by Waverley Publishing Company for a decision in respect of the following publication: The Debauched Hospodar and Memoirs of a Young Rakehell by Guillaume Apollinaire and published by Holloway House Publishing Co. of Los Angeles:

Date of Hearing: 30 July 1975, at Wellington.

No appearance of the applicant but written submissions were received.

Mr P. E. Leloir and Mr K. G. Murray appeared on behalf of the Comptroller of Customs.

DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL

This is an English translation of two works by Guillaume Apollinaire originally published in French in 1907 as Les onze mille verges and Les exploits d'un jeune Don Juan. This edition which was first published in 1967, and has quite a substantial introduction on Apollinaire's life and work, and presumably the same translation as that dealt with in decision No. 15 of 24 February 1965. That decision classified the book as "indecent unless circulation is restricted to persons professionally engaged in the study of abnormal psychology".

Considering this again, after more than ten years, the Tribunal is now inclined to the view that this was an unduly restrictive classification which probably took insufficient account of the importance of Apollinaire as a French writer of the early 20th century. He is best known as a poet with a very wide and deep influence on the surrealist movement, in both art and literature, a movement of which he was, if not exactly the founder, a major progenitor, and his influence has extended steadily since his death in 1918. Critics have taken the view that the two works (which are very different) were both parodies, in the one case of the works of the Marquis de Sade, and the other of a symbolist novel dealing with a boy's first sexual experiences. High-spirited and exaggerated for effect, they are unlikely to have a depraving effect. They should certainly be available to students of literature, of art, and of the pre-World War I Parisian artistic society of which Apollinaire was a prominent member—this list could indeed be extended, and we consider these ends are best served by imposing a general age classification. We accordingly find the book indecent in the hands of persons under the age of eighteen years.

MAURICE M. GREIG, Chairman.
