Decision No. 4/79

Decision of the Broadcasting Tribunal

In the matter of the Broadcasting Act 1976, and in the matter of a complaint under section 67 (1) by the Society for the Promotion of Community Standards (Inc.):

WARRANT HOLDER: Broadcasting Corporation of New Zealand—in respect of Television Two:

BEFORE THE BROADCASTING TRIBUNAL

Members: B. H. Slane (Chairman), Lionel R. Scats, Janet C. Somerville.
Co-opted Members: Mary A. Ronnie, Lindsay R. Shelton.
Date of Hearing: 29 March 1979.

DEcision

The Complaint

The complaint concerned a Television Two Access programme broadcast at 1 p.m., on Sunday, 8 October 1978. The programme consisted of a studio discussion with members of nudists societies advocating the allocation of public beaches for use by nudists. The purpose of access programmes is to provide an opportunity for groups to present their viewpoint in their own way. The Access programme lasted about half an hour and half the programme was devoted to the nudism topic.

During the discussion some film clips were shown to which exception was taken by the Society for the Promotion of Community Standards.

In its complaint to the Tribunal, the Society complained:

1. That the Corporation failed to maintain in the programme and its presentation, standards which are generally acceptable to the community.
2. That it failed to observe in the programme and its presentation standards of good taste and decency in breach of section 24 (1) (c) of the Broadcasting Act 1976.
3. It failed to have regard in the programme and its presentation to the maintenance of law and order in breach of section 24 (1) (f).
4. That the programme and its presentation was in breach of rules 1.1 (b), (c), and (f), and rule 5.1 (c) of the Programme Rules.

The Society consider the Corporation should have upheld the Society’s complaint.

In the complaint to the Corporation the Society objected to “scenes of male and female full frontal nudity.” The Society had “never been so offended”. “Stark naked New Zealanders’ bodies in the living rooms of the nation early on a Sunday afternoon is a new and completely unnecessary downward trend,” the Society told the Corporation.

“About a quarter of the time was devoted to moving scenes of naked people sun bathing on public beaches, walking in and out of the sea, playing games in nudist camps, working in nudist camps, and walking along a bush road. Male and female genital areas were clearly seen.”

The Corporation was informed that unless the Society received an assurance that full frontal nudity of male and female Europeans on television is not to be permitted in future, it would have no alternative but to lodge a formal complaint about the programme with the police and a new downward precedent would have been established.

In its reply the Corporation stated:

1. Access is specifically designed for minority groups to present their views. This type of programme is a specific example of the Corporation’s efforts to fulfil its obligations under section 24 (1) (a) of the Broadcasting Act to provide...
2. A range of programmes which will cater in a balanced way for the varied interests of different sections of the community.
In this way Mrs Finny acted as Devil's Advocate and asked Patricia Bartlett, the Society made the following points:

1. The permitting of this programme at this time is uncon¬ suitable for this programme to be broadcast then it should not be broadcast before the Auckland Nudist Club said:

"Some of our opponents from the Society for the Promotion of Community Standards accepted an invitation to be with us today to debate nudity but unfortunately declined at the last minute."

She added:

"We have in the studio Bunty Finny from the Access programme to put to us questions normally asked by members of the public."

In this way Mrs Finny acted as Devil's Advocate and asked some straightforward questions.

The summary Board of the Corporation felt that neither by intention nor in presentation was this programme in breach of section 24 (1) (c) of the Broadcasting Act 1976. The Corporation did not uphold the complaint.

In submissions made in person through her secretary, Miss Patricia Bartlett, the Society made the following points:

1. If television is to be permitted to screen full frontal male and female nudity and nude programmes in children's viewing time it follows television commercials and all New Zealand made television programmes may follow suit.

2. The permitting of this programme at this time is incon¬ suitable with the rulings of the New Zealand film censor.

3. It is difficult for parents to supervise every programme and they should not be obliged to turn off the family television set in the daytime or early in the evening because of undesirable scenes of nudity.

4. Nudity in a public place is an offence prosecuted by the police.

5. There have been counter-petitions to oppose the nudist clubs' agitating for public nude bathing on public beaches.

6. The Press Council has upheld complaints against newspapers photographs in Truth and one newspaper has decided voluntarily not to publish photographs of nudists.

7. Some public statements and positions taken by public authorities have been contrary to the view put forward in the programme.

Apart from objecting to a discussion of embarrassment which might arise in a non-romantic situation, the complaint was confined to the film clips shown in the programme.

The society made a plea for all New Zealand made pro¬ grammes to be subject to censorship by the Programme Standards Department of the Corporation.

The Society opposes any full frontal nudity on television except in documentaries of "primitive native people." (These should be permitted because they are an indication of acceptance of the culture of other people. Nudists may have argued for a similar tolerance.)

At the public hearing before the Tribunal, Mr Rod Cornelius, who is an experienced director and producer and is head of the department concerned with the production of the Access programmes informed the Tribunal that the Access programme was considered to be more of an adult pro¬ gramme; it was shown during a period of low audience viewing; no shock tactics had been used in the course of the programme which had lasted 14 minutes of which 2 minutes 58 seconds had contained film clips. Of that period, only 25 seconds could be said to have involved the showing of full frontal nudity.

Cornelius himself had viewed the programme and had made further editing of it to eliminate, in his judgement, any indecent or close-up explicit details.

He submitted that there was a difference between publishing photographs and on television. On television the period during which the viewer could see any scene could be exactly controlled. Many of the scenes were discreet with no detail and all film clips were used purely as illustrations of the discussion. More detail was shown in documentaries of primitive peoples than in this programme. He submitted that the rules had been complied with and the programme was within the acceptable standards of broadcasting.

Miss Bartlett said that her Society was opposed to the showing on television of bare-breasted females at any time but considers that the showing of men's bodies for a similar tolerance.

The Tribunal viewed a videotape of the programme. There were 14 minutes of prerecorded studio discussion. Film clips were shown during part of the discussion for nearly 3 minutes but were not shown continuously. The film clips were not shown continuously and the average length was 15 seconds. They were not repetitive. The dominant effect of the programme was not the content of the film clips but the discussion. The film clips illustrating the discussion did contain some distant shots of nudists unclad but only the final sequence allowed the viewer to look and find genitalia.

The Decision

Television should illustrate and in the opinion of the Tribunal this programme did so without breaching the standards of good taste and decency in the community. We did not find that the programme offended.

The Society had an obligation to take part in the programme but did not do so. The opening of the programme was not designed to attract prurient interest; that might have occurred if there had been a warning published that the programme would be offensive. We would have drawn attention to the content of the programme to have rescheduled it for a period after 10 p.m. at night. We consider that there would have been little, if any, distress caused by nudity and nothing further.

We do not consider that the content of the programme would have been harmful to children.

The programme heavily emphasised the arguments in favour of the activities available through nudist clubs; film clips illustrated the activities engaged in. Their stated argument for wanting areas of their own arose out of an intention not to want to offend members of the public. The intention of the programme was not to titilate and the film clips successfully showed nudists in the surroundings in which they gather. It is quite clear that it is possible to provide more provocative programme material by use of clothing than by the simple nudity displayed on this programme.

We did not consider it particularly helpful to examine decisions under other legislation referred to in some further submissions made on behalf of the Society to their solicitors. Although these submissions were headed legal submissions, they largely expanded the same arguments as were put most effectively by Miss Bartlett in person.

It is worth noting how hazardous it is to accept, as a general principle, such statements as "where the criminal law proscribes such activities, the Broadcasting Corporation should not permit them." This Tribunal finds it quite ridiculous to suggest that television should never portray any activity which is illegal. It is even more ridiculous to suggest that behaviour should not be shown which in private is not illegal but which if carried on in public would be illegal. We certainly do not accept that a programme is in bad taste because it shows something which if done in Queen Street or Lambton Quay would be an offence.

The Tribunal does not consider that the discussion was offensive or that it departed from the norms of decency and good taste in language or behaviour. Though it is accepted that minor points may not always be acceptable, the Tribunal accepts the submissions made by Mr Cornelius that considera¬ tion must be given to the aims of the programme maker and the context in which the activities objected to occur. The Tribunal does not consider that the showing of film of nudists in support of those advocating a change in the law to be a failure on the behalf of the Corporation to have regard to the maintenance of law and order in the community.

The Tribunal notes that the complainant seems to place little weight on the distance at which film is shot and seems concerned only that the showing of frontal nudity was repeated on a number of occasions in the course of the submission.

The only part of the film which the Tribunal had any reservations about was the final scene which it considered could have been shortened. However the Tribunal does not consider that it should get into the field of programme editing and must look at the overall result. While it might have considered the programme to have been just as good without the shot of the couple walking through the bush towards the camera naked, the context in which the film clip appeared would not justify the Tribunal upholding the complaint.

The Tribunal does not consider that it is possible to dismiss a documentary showing "primitive native people" naked as being acceptable because they are "primitive native people". (The use of this expression perhaps reveals more about Society than it realises.)

The Tribunal is concerned that the Society cannot understand that the circumstances of the film, the context in which it is shown, and the length or period of display all must be taken into account in considering the acceptability of the programme itself.

The Tribunal wishes to emphasise that although it has set out at length many arguments raised by the Society the prime influence on its decision must be its viewing of the programme.

The Tribunal rejects entirely the Society's suggestion that it necessarily follows that television commercials and all New Zealand made television programmes may follow some alleged relaxation of standards brought about by our "approving" this programme. That is not the situation and any statement made by the Society to that effect fails to understand this decision.

It is clear that programme makers have to use great care in deciding the occasions on which nudity would be permitted on television in New Zealand. We consider in this case that the Corporation through Television Two took considerable care in showing a programme on a subject in which some delicacy is required in ensuring that steps were taken to contain realism without offence.

While we, as a Tribunal, may have edited the programme slightly differently in respect of the final scene, we do not consider it our task to instruct broadcasters in such matters in which they rather than we have the technical and professional skills. It is considered the number of occasions in which similar sort of films will be shown will be very few and the Tribunal will have no difficulty in discerning the objectives of the programme maker by the production itself and the honesty of purpose or sensational prurient attention sought in presentation.

Finally, we consider it inappropriate to compare the film censor's task with that of the television producer. Even less relevant to television is the way in which such matters are determined for the press. We have noted but do not intend to set out in full a number of differences between the cases submitted to us regarding newspapers including those where there has been some decision of the Courts applying other statutes.

One such difference is that the newspaper reader may study for as long as he or she wishes any photograph displayed in a newspaper. A television producer can control the period during which the viewer sees possibly objectionable material; no such control is possible in newspaper production.

The Tribunal upholds the decision of the Corporation and declines to find the complaint of the Society justified.

Co-opted Members:

In accordance with section 61 (10) the Tribunal has co-opted Miss M. A. Ronnie and Mr. L. R. Shelton as two persons whose qualifications or experience were likely, in the opinion of the Tribunal, to be of assistance to the Tribunal in dealing with the complaint. They have taken part in the deliberations of the Tribunal but the decision in accordance with the Act is that of the permanent members.

Decision of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

IN THE MATTER OF THE Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by the Comptroller of Customs in respect of the publications:
1. Title: Two Women In Love.
   Author: Roy Volkmann.

BEFORE THE INDECENT PUBLICATIONS TRIBUNAL

MESSRS L. M. GREIG (CHAIRMAN), D. M. WYLIE, MRS H. B. DICK.

APPEARANCES: Mr P. E. Leloir for Comptroller of Customs.

DECISION:

These four books were seized by the Customs Department on a commercial importation and come before us on disputed forfeiture.

The first two books are collections of limericks or jokes which are nearly all of the bawdy or sexual variety. There is no literary merit or social importance in either book and the overall effect on each of them is a trivial, tasteless, and exaggerated emphasis on matters of sex. Each of these books is indecent.

Two Women In Love is a collection of photographs which depicts sexual activity between two women. The dominant effect of the book is an appeal to prurience without any redeeming feature. This book is indecent.

25 Ways to Better Love Making comprises photographs and text and deals with sexual techniques. Its presentation is restrained and sensible and includes an explicit and implicit assumption that sexual relationships are not merely physical. As was noted in Decision No. 926 the Tribunal feels that in light of some change in the standards of community opinion since the Decisions numbered 432 to 435 in March 1972 a restriction to age 16 may be more appropriate in this type of publication.

The Tribunal classifies Playboy's Book of Limericks, Two Women In Love, and The World's Best Dirty Jokes, as indecent.

It classifies 25 Ways to Better Love Making as indecent in the hands of persons under the age of 16 years.

BEFORE THE INDECENT PUBLICATIONS TRIBUNAL

MESSRS L. M. GREIG (CHAIRMAN), D. M. WYLIE, MRS H. B. DICK.

APPEARANCES: Mr P. E. Leloir for Comptroller of Customs, Mr P. H. Thorp for Waverley Publishing Co. Ltd., written submissions from the Society for the Promotion of Individual Responsibility (Inc.) authorised by Waverley Publishing Co. Ltd., considered.
Decision
Each of these publications was imported as a sample copy by a commercial importer, seized by the Customs Department and came before us on disputed forfeiture.

Six of these publications are picture books of nude females with special emphasis on the size of their breasts. Three of them, namely Foxette, Volume 1, No. 5; Foxette, Volume 1, No. 2, and F. & T., Volume 1, No. 2, are the same as the first six but include more text. Sex Objects is a photographic study of massage parlour girls which includes the text of interviews with some of the girl. This last book is different from the others and will be dealt with separately.

The Tribunal has carefully considered the nine picture books in light of the matters to be taken into account under section 11 of the Act. The Tribunal’s conclusion is that the books all fall within the third category described in the 1968 Waverley Decision. The dominant effect of these publications is an appeal to prurience with photographs which are in the main unnatural and artificial and frequently ugly and contrived. Even those publications which have some text are in no way redeemed by that. In each case the emphasis on nudity in the way it is represented is objectionable and indecent.

Sex Objects is described as a photo documentary published in America which purports to be a study in text and photography, neutrally represented, on the theme of women who make money through their bodies. After a careful consideration of the book the Tribunal has some doubts as to the honesty of purpose and believes that the overall effect is rather a camouflage, which is intended to render acceptable parts of the publication which are indecent. Some of the text and some of the photographs are clearly indecent. The purport of the documentary treatment and the other parts of the publication when viewed in conjunction with the parts which are indecent do not, in our view, redeem or outweigh the overall effect.

The Tribunal classifies each of these 10 publications as indecent.
