

SCHEDULE II

1. The sensing unit is to be attached to the exhaust system so that the optical path is unobscured and is as close as is practicable to the end of the exhaust pipe.
2. The lenses are to be clean.
3. The readout unit is to be adjusted to read zero.
4. The optical path is then to be blocked and the readout unit adjusted to read 100.
5. Steps 3 and 4 are to be repeated until no further adjustment is necessary.
6. When tested with a neutral density optical filter of nominal opacity 50 percent the instrument reading is to be within  $\pm 2$  units of the known filter opacity.
7. Exhaust smoke opacity is to be measured with the engine operating under a load other than one imposed solely by its own rotational inertia.
8. With engine off and without further adjustment or cleaning, the instrument reading is to be checked at zero obscuration and with a neutral density optical filter of nominal opacity 50 percent.
9. The maximum discrepancy observed in (8) is not to exceed 6 units.
10. For the purposes of regulation 28 (2) (b) of the said regulations the exhaust smoke opacity shall be that measured in (7) less any discrepancy observed in (8).

Dated at Wellington this 30th day of September 1980.

A. J. EDWARDS, Secretary for Transport.
