   (i) Name and address of the importer.
   (ii) The name of the fruit or vegetable. If new or unusual, include the botanical name if possible and the part of the plant to be imported—e.g. root, stem, leaves, or fruit.
   (iii) State of the produce i.e. fresh or dried. Specify any treatment given before export.
   (iv) Quantity.
   (v) Country of origin—i.e. where the produce was grown. For large countries specify the state, province, or region of origin.
   (vi) Country of export, if this is not the country of origin.
   (vii) Purpose of importation if not for human consumption.
   (viii) Method of transport to New Zealand—e.g. cool or ordinary storage, ship or aircraft.
   (ix) Port of arrival in New Zealand.
   (x) Period of the year when import is likely to take place.

An application to import a fruit or vegetable may necessitate a considerable amount of checking by the Ministry of the pest and disease risk involved, including correspondence with the country of origin. Importers must allow for this delay when making application.
