Decision of the Indecent Publications Tribunal

Decision No.: 1007

Reference No.: IND 26/80

IN the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by the District Court for a decision in respect of the following publication: Key Magazine No. 6 published by Key Publishing, Auckland:

BEFORE THE INDECENT PUBLICATIONS TRIBUNAL

Judge W. M. Willis (chairman); Mesdames H. B. Dick, L. P. Nikera; Messrs J. V. B. McLinden, I. W. Malcolm.
Hearing: 1 May 1981.

Decision: 1 October 1981.

Appearances: Inspector D. L. Bates for Legal Section, New Zealand Police, Mr J. Billington for Venus Shop Ltd. Written submissions supplied by Mr Alan Douglas, Publisher, Key Publishing, Auckland. Written submissions supplied by Aloma H. Colgan, Ph.D., Clinical Psychologist, Human Relations Centre, Auckland.

DECISION

A single copy of Key Magazine No. 6 was submitted by the District Court for classification pursuant to section 22 of the Indecent Publications Act 1963. The magazine came before the Tribunal as a result of a complaint being made to the Police by an adult member of the public.

A general description of the form and content of the publication may be helpful at this stage. Key Magazine has apparently been published in New Zealand since October 1978. Issue No. 6 contains 40 pages and measures 170 mm × 210 mm.

The bulk of the magazine is given over to the publication of advertisements by persons who (in the vast majority of cases) seek to make sexual contact with others. Five general types of advertisement are carried:

1. Couples seeking "swinging" times.
2. Women wanting to meet men.
3. Bi-sexual women wanting to meet other women.
4. Persons with unusual or "kinky tastes" who want others to share their sexual proclivity.
5. Men looking for women.

In many cases the advertisements directly solicit sexual contact. By way of example we set out two typical advertisements below:

(1) At page 6:

Couples: North Shore: Couple 45 and 36 need use of a suitable place in North Shore (Devonport to Albany) for discreet daytime sex. Female occupant would be welcome to join us. Male partner also interested in a friendly couple or lady who needs to satisfy unusual desires, daytime only. Any age group welcome. (C184.)

(2) At page 26:

Men: Rotorua: Happily married guy, but not getting enough. 30 years old, well built and good stayer. Very randy, would like to meet solo mother, single girls, bored housewives, for daytime sex. Race and age immaterial, if we click it's all go. All replies answered. (M456.)

In addition to the advertisements there are a number of articles and letters on sexual matters, and there are some 9 photographs of females and 2 of males, in states of partial or complete nudity.

After making those general remarks concerning the form and content of the publication, we turn now to examine those matters as required by section 11 of the Indecent Publications Act.

1. THE DOMINANT EFFECT OF THE PUBLICATION

There can be little or no doubt that the primary purpose of the publication is to provide a forum for persons wishing to make sexual contact with others.

The man behind Key Magazine, Mr Alan Douglas, explained to us his motives in publishing the magazine.

The magazine appears to have had its genesis in the fact that the New Zealand Herald had refused to accept an advertisement from Mr Douglas who was seeking a companion to "cuddle on a cold winter's night". Apparently the Herald was prepared to consider a form of advertisement with the word "cuddle" deleted. Mr Douglas could not see why his advertisement had to be censored in the way described, and since he felt there was a need for a publication to print such advertisements, he commenced publishing Key Magazine, as we understand it, some time in 1978.
