people to be identified, we do not think there is any community standard which in itself constitutes a bar to a radio station promoting itself by means of some competition or other promotion which involves stopping a person in the street. The circumstances in which the Corporation was not the present complainant is the context of the streetwalker element which requires a person to put a question which, to say the least, could easily be, or be interpreted as, offensive to the won.

The fact that the stopping in the street was done by listeners not agents or employees of the station, created the circumstances in which a breach of standards could occur so easily.

We do not find that there is a privacy standard which prevent the stopping of people in the street. The mere stopping and speaking to the people is not the kind of breach of privacy. We therefore cannot uphold the complaints on this ground.

This is not to be regarded as support for the promotion which was properly dealt with in as bad taste by Radio New Zealand and their corporate action then can be a breach of the Broadcasting Act to have complaints publicly upheld.

Maintenance of Law and Order—Ms Rankin said the promotion promoted conduct which could readily amount to offensive behaviour. Any angry reaction by any woman could, she said, result in a breach of the peace.

It would be easy to condemn any programme for urging or displaying conduct which could lead to or be said to encourage a breach of the peace. On that basis much news coverage such as programmes on homosexuality, anti-protest movement, or advocating tougher police action should not be shown because an offence or offences may be committed. We do not accept that.

We see this rule as rather protecting viewers from programmes which constitute a real threat to the maintenance of law and order. The Corporation's action was sufficient.

We do not consider the Act contemplates the Tribunal being able to require the Corporation to make donations to organisations, nor that it publicly spell out new standards. We comment however, that it may be appropriate for the rules committee to consider in each case that a complaint like this occurs, whether or not any amendment might be required to the current rules and standards in the light of changing social conditions and attitudes. At the same time there are adversarial principles which promote protective promotion rather than a news programme should not change the principle.

Action taken by the Corporation—The Act is silent as to what is appropriate action. We consider that in some cases the mere finding on the complaint will be adequate action. In this case, the Corporation states that staff had been advised of the upholding of the complaint and warned against promotions of a similar kind.

District managers and ZM station managers were told by Radio New Zealand on 22 February:
—To beware of "sexually orientated promotional ploys"
—To cease the promotion
—The promotion was in "appalling taste"

.Restrictors should take an interest in ZM promotions.

We do not consider the Act contemplates the Tribunal being able to require the Corporation to make donations to organisations, nor that it publicly spell out new standards. We comment however, that it may be appropriate for the rules committee to consider in each case that a complaint like this occurs, whether or not any amendments might be required to the current rules and standards in the light of changing social conditions and attitudes. At the same time there are adversarial principles which promote protective promotion rather than a news programme should not change the principle.

It is also suggested that the Corporation should have dismissed the manager of ZM. It would be quite inappropriate for this Tribunal to become involved in the industrial relations of the Corporation with its staff or to recommend or stipulate any particular action be taken against an individual employee or contractor of the Corporation. Such people are not represented before the Tribunal, nor are staff representatives appointed to the Tribunal. Industrial relations is a matter quite separate from the rights of persons under the Broadcasting Act to have complaints publicly upheld.

We consider the provision for a complainant to be able to complain about action taken by the Corporation refers to any remedial statements, such as apologies or corrections that ought to be undertaken in relation to the complaint and any notification to staff which might be required to prevent further breaches of the same provisions in similar circumstances.

In this case, in view of the action taken on 22 February, the Corporation's action was sufficient.

The complaints are not upheld on this ground.

It would be reasonable to condition that broadcasters like all people in positions of responsibility will from time to time make mistakes. It would be unfortunate if the provisions of the Broadcasting Act were seen to present an opportunity to carry out a specific action against individuals concerned. In the proper context of the Act the responsibility for what is broadcast is that of the warrant holder.

The Corporation's failure to stipulate its reasoning in upholding complaints—The complainants would have liked to have seen some statements by the Corporation which could be regarded as definitive for broadcasters in the future. They would have liked to have seen some statements that went beyond the existing complaint on the status of women. The latter is really a matter for the rules committee rather than for the Board of the Corporation on the finding on a complaint.

It would be unnecessarily burdensome on the Corporation if, when upholding a complaint that a programme was in breach of a particular rule or provision in the Act that it had to consider 5 or 6 different arguments, some of which it could define its attitude on each one. The right that the complainant has is for a ruling whether or not the programme breached the particular provision. In this case the Corporation has noted the provisions which it considers were breached and we do not consider it has to go any further than that.

Nor do we consider the Tribunal is obliged to deal with every argument for upholding a complaint. Once the complaint has been upheld on one ground in relation to one standard or rule, the Tribunal is not obliged to consider finding a breach of the same standard on other grounds. This would turn the procedure into a legalistic one.

It is in borderline cases that the Tribunal can usefully define limits. Clear rules where breaches are not always the best on which to base definitive judgments.

The Tribunal has a discretion to decide whether or not it should determine a complaint—In general terms the Tribunal may frequently decide not to deal with a complaint if the complaint has been upheld on one ground or another but the complainants seeks that it be upheld on a further ground. This is more likely to occur, when the station has itself dealt with the matter before formal complaints were made, as in the present case.

However in the case of these 2 complainants, they had raised a number of important points for consideration by the Tribunal in a detailed and closely argued fashion.

We thought it appropriate therefore to deal with the complaint and to try and define for the future some of the limitations inherent in the complainants procedure by dealing with what the complainants obviously feel is a very important social issue.

Sight must not be lost of the fact that the officers responsible withdrew the promotion very shortly after broadcasts commenced, that the Corporation upheld the complaints on a number of grounds and that steps were taken to advise staff of the situation and to warn them of the risks of this sort of promotion occurring again.

The complaints are not upheld.

Co-opted Members—Mrs Boyd-Bell and Mrs Easther were co-opted as persons whose qualifications or experience were likely, in the opinion of the Tribunal to be of assistance to the Tribunal in dealing with the complaints. They took part in the deliberations of the Tribunal but the decision is that of the permanent members.

Oral Decision

The 16th day of December 1982

The matter we had to consider was the complaint contained in paragraph (b) on page 2 of Mr Simpson’s letter, dated 5 July 1982. There is provision under Rule 4 for sponsorship and we believe that many of the programme items transmitted are sponsored items in the sense that those taking part are making payment to Northern Television or to their producers, Kevin Moore and Associates, to appear at all, i.e. they are promoting themselves. Conversely those purveying the products either featured or mentioned in the items are paying for this. We presume you would be aware of this in terms of Rule 4.1 which requires direct control by yourselves. If our information is correct then either these items are advertisements, in which case they breach both Rule 1.1, and the Tribunal structure on total advertising content, or they are straight sponsored programmes and this must be acknowledged in the programme credits as required by Rule 4.1.

The Tribunal has concluded that there has been no decision by the Corporation on that point. Instead the Corporation requested identification of particular programmes and the elements considered to infringe the rule. It is not then possible for the Tribunal to determine the complaint which can only be referred to us if the complainant is dissatisfied with the decision of the Corporation. There has such no such decision.

The Tribunal considers that Mr Simpson, if he wishes to pursue his complaint, should do so by reference to one or more days of broadcasting of the programme and the programme elements in them if he considers they infringe the rules. Particulars were given of such matters in the same letter in relation to the Good Morning programme broadcast on 2 July.

The Tribunal does not consider that a wide-ranging inquiry can be invoked by simply making a general allegation in relation to a series of programmes.

As we normally state, the co-opted members took part in this hearing and the deliberations of the Tribunal, but the decisions are those of the permanent members.

B. H. SLANE, Chairman.

In the matter of the Broadcasting Act 1976, and in the matter of a complaint by Anthony Jon Simpson of Wellington:

WARRANT HOLDER—Broadcasting Corporation of New Zealand, Television New Zealand (TV One):

B. H. Slane, Chairman; Lionel R. Scents, and Anne E. Wilson, Members; Gordon C. Ell, and Robert Boyd-Bell, Co-opted Members.

Decision Mr Leitch complained of obscene language used on 22B on Wednesday, 7 July at approximately 7.37 a.m. The offence, he said, occurred in the context of a joke.

He claimed that in the punch line of the joke the word “fuckin’” had been used. The Corporation did not uphold the complaint saying that the line was “I don’t wanta your Fokker Friendship”. Mr Leitch was dissatisfied with the outcome of his complaint and referred it to the Tribunal but accepted that the word he complained of may not actually have been used. He claimed however that it sounded similar.

The Tribunal has listened to a tape of the programme and is satisfied that the word was clearly pronounced as Fokker and was not slurred or spoken in a way that could reasonably be misheard. However, as stated by Mr Leitch, that was the point of the story.

It was told in a series broadcast as a contest. None of the other jokes were complained about.

The question the Tribunal had to consider was whether or not the broadcast of this transgressed the standards.

The Tribunal had regard to the time and context in which the joke was told. Considering the time placement and the medium the “joke” was inappropriate. It falls below the standards which should apply to a breakfast programme directed to a family audience. The breach is not a serious one since the word relied upon for the humour was not spoken.

The complaint is upheld.

Co-opted members—Messers Boyd-Bell and Ell were co-opted as members of the Tribunal for the purposes of this complaint. The decision is that of the permanent members.

Dated the 13th day of December 1982.
Signed for the Tribunal:

B. H. SLANE, Chairman.

Mr Turner complained to the Corporation about a commercial broadcast on 12H Hamilton on 5 June 1982, the text of which was: “The Winter Show’s always interesting, always informative, and this year, one of the most intriguing stands is that of Villa
The use of the plural "qualities" in the rule must limit its use to be that of the permanent members. Took part in the deliberations of the Tribunal but the decision is why and how "is a description of those qualities. There are two meanings of quality referred to in Heinemann's New generally accepted understanding of the rule requirement "no the liquor. The rule refers to an advertisement not making any reference to the availability of alcoholic liquor for sale. The advertisement refers to Villa Maria Wines Ltd. having risen to the top quality which was being extolled. The third part of the complaint was that the general reference to top quality can be construed as a description of one of the qualities of the wine. There was no reference in the advertisement to these aspects and descriptions of the qualities of the alcoholic liquor manufactured, distributed or sold by the advertiser are included in the advertisement.

The complainant claimed that the whole commercial was laden with the implication that Villa Maria Wines were available for sale. It did not matter, he said, that the wines were not available for sale at the company's stand at the Winter Show. There was nothing in the rule about where alcoholic liquor was available. If the commercial makes it apparent that a name brand of liquor was available for sale somewhere then, he contended, rule 1.11.2 (1) had been broken. The Corporation did not uphold his complaint. The rule refers to an advertisement not making any reference to the availability of alcohol liquor for sale. The advertisement does not make any reference to it being available for sale. In this respect the complaint is not upheld.

Mr Turner alleged breach of 1.11.2 (2) because the word reisling did not appear in the Company's name. The Corporation submitted that reisling was not a brand name but a type of wine and therefore that rule had no bearing on the matter. The Tribunal agrees. The complaint is not upheld in this respect.

The third part of the complaint was that the advertisement was in breach of 1.11.2 (3). The Corporation said in answer to this that the statement related specifically to the company rising to the top because of product excellence. I submitted that the fact of the general accepted understanding of the rule requirement "no descriptions of the qualities of the alcoholic liquor" was to exclude such aspects as colour, taste, smell and other aspects which were widely accepted as constituting wine qualities. There was no reference in the advertisement to these aspects and it was the company and not the actual definable nature of its product which was being extolled.

The advertisement refers to Villa Maria Wines Ltd. having risen "to the top in table wine quality". The question is whether the general reference to top quality can be construed as a description of one of the qualities of the wine. There are two meanings of quality referred to in Heinemann's New Zealand Dictionary: "1. A characteristic. 2. Character with respect to excellent: 'meat of the highest quality is very expensive.'"

The use of the plural "qualities" in the rule must limit its use to be the first meaning. For the advertisement to have been caught by the rule, the rule would have had to ban descriptions of the quality of the alcoholic liquor and the qualities (i.e. the characteristics) of the liquor.

We do not consider that the invitation to listeners to "find out why and how" is a description of those qualities.

The complaint is not upheld in this respect.

The result is that Mr Turner's complaint is not upheld.

Co-opted Members—Mrs Susan Boyd-Bell and Mr Gordon Ell were co-opted as persons whose qualifications or experience would be of assistance to the Tribunal in dealing with the complaint. They took part in the deliberations of the Tribunal but the decision is that of the permanent members.

Dated the 22nd day of December 1982.

For the Tribunal:

B. H. SLANE, Chairman.

In terms of section 25 (2) of the Reserve Bank of New Zealand Act 1964, the Reserve Bank's outer limits for the range of exchange to be used in transactions involving the conversion of New Zealand currency into foreign currencies and foreign currencies into New Zealand currency when delivery of the foreign currency dealt in will be effected by telegraphic transfer. The following range of rates, for the main currencies used by New Zealand traders in settling foreign exchange transactions, will remain in force until replaced by a new Schedule issued by the Reserve Bank. These rates do not apply to transactions for settlement after the expiration of 2 business days (forward transactions) or to transactions in which instruments are purchased which do not entitle the buyer to foreign currency balances in the foreign centre until the instruments have been delivered at the foreign centre. In the latter case interest at foreign centre rates may be deducted from the telegraphic transfer rate to compensate the purchaser for his loss during the transit period.

The Naval Defence of New Zealand 1914-1942 by I. C. McGibbon.
446 p. 1981. Illustrated. $45 plus $3.60 p & p
For twenty years the strategic basis of New Zealand’s defence policy was “the main fleet to Singapore” strategy—the theory of a properly defended Singapore Naval Base to which adequate British Naval forces would be despatched to defend the Empire East of Suez. In the event Singapore fell to the attacking Japanese forces on 13 February 1942. This book, then, is essentially a study of why New Zealand placed reliance on an unsatisfactory strategy, which was always admitted to be second best to that in which a battle fleet was permanently based in the Pacific.

WOODS AND PASTIMES OF THE MAORI

(Eldson Best)

421 p. 1977. $17.95 plus $1.50 p & p

Printed without textual alteration, the work provides an important basis for any study of old-time Maori economics and perhaps more importantly of his attitude to what was a major part of his environment. It will be of more general interest today than when first written, since it stresses so fully the uses made by the Maori people of their natural resources, and supplies basic materials for further studies in ethnobotany and ethnozoology. The reverence which the old-time Maori showed towards natural resources mirrors the modern concern for ecological principles.

GAMES AND PASTIMES OF THE MAORI

(Dominion Museum Bulletin No. 8, 1976 Reprint)

By Eldson Best

334 p. $17 plus $1.50 p & p

First published in 1925 this bulletin is one of the series originally written by Eldson Best, and has been reprinted without textual alteration.

Eldson Best describes it as “An account of various exercises, games, and pastimes of the natives of New Zealand, as practised in former times; including some information concerning their vocal and instrumental music.”

Includes an account of musical instruments and Maori song together with games and pastimes of a relaxing nature as well as those involved in ritual and training.

Contents include; Military exercises and games, Aquatic games, Children’s games, Introduced games, Maori songs and Musical instruments.

GLASSHOUSE TOMATOES

Agriculture Bulletin 3370

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

86 p. 1978. $2.25 plus 55c p & p

The present text replaces earlier editions of the bulletin. Important factors to consider when establishing a tomato-growing glasshouse, are lighting, soil type, site, water supply, shelter, and proximity to a market. These as well as general cultural practices are dealt with in this bulletin.

FISHING METHODS AND DEVICES OF THE MAORI

(Eldson Best)

Dominion Museum Bulletin No. 12

264 p. 1981. $15.95 plus $1.50 p & p

Another in the series of the Best publications it has been reprinted without revision so that the basic studies may be accessible in the original style.

This particular bulletin still remains the only comprehensive account of most aspects of Maori fishing. The descriptions of methods employed in fishing given here are still quite basic for any future studies in this field since no first-hand observations can now be made. The detailed fishing methods outlined are accompanied by descriptions of the artifacts used, together with associated chants, magic formulae, special observances, and fishing lore.

ILLUSTRATIONS OF NEW ZEALAND FOSSILS

DSIR Information Series No. 150

36 p. 1980 reprint. $1.75 plus 55c p & p

One of the aims in letter writing is to get ideas across to the reader clearly and briefly. But do letters always say what is meant? Even if they are clear to the writer, will the reader understand them easily? If you are still using the old cliches of "acknowledging receipt of", "according to our records", and "enclosed please find" it is almost certainly time to change your attitude to writing Living Letters.
