Decision No. 1063.

Reference No: IND 4/82

Before the Indecent Publications Tribunal

In the matter of the Indecent Publications Act 1963, and in the matter of an application by the Comptroller of Customs for a decision in respect of the following publication: Men in Love, published by Arrow Books Limited, London:

Judge: W. M. Willis (Chairman).
Messrs: J. V. B. McLinden, I. W. Malcolm.

Hearing: 1 April 1982.

Decision: 5 May 1983.

Appearances: No appearance of Importer, Wholesale Book Distributors. Mr Leloir for Comptroller of Customs.

DECISION

We were told by the Comptroller of Customs that a single copy of this publication was imported by a commercial firm and seized at Auckland in September 1981. As the importer has disputed the forfeiture the Customs Department has referred the publication to the Tribunal for classification prior to the commencement of condemnation proceedings under the Customs Act 1966.

Men in Love is a paperback approximately 527 pages in length. It was published by Arrow Books Ltd. in 1980 in Great Britain, and copyright is vested in the author Nancy Friday in 1980. Other publications written by the author include My Secret Garden, Forbidden Flowers, and My Mother, Myself. Only one of these books has been referred to the Tribunal—My Secret Garden in 1976. That publication was similar in style to Men in Love, except that it dealt with women's sexual fantasies. In Decision No. 873 the Tribunal classified the book as not indecent saying:

"The Tribunal regards this (book) as an honestly conceived sociological study; . . ."

The attitude taken by the Department to the present publication was that it purported to be a serious study of men's erotic fantasies.

The Department noted that the author did not appear to have any qualifications to make the publication an authoritative medical or scientific work. In those circumstances the Department suggested that an age restriction would be appropriate.

The classification of this book has caused us difficulty, for we have numerous misgivings about its quality. Some of the aspects of concern are:

1. Unlike the Hite Report (Decision No. 913) or the Hite Report on Male Sexuality (Decision No. 1037) the present publication offers little in the way of background statistics on responses received etc. Ms Friday expressly disclaims the helpfulness of statistics in the topics covered in her publication (p. 13). She does however volunteer the information that she received some 3,000 responses, as a result of an advertisement inserted in her book Forbidden Flowers. The responses were culled down to approximately 200 she felt to be the most representative. She did offer broad statistics as to age, education, marital status, and geographic distribution of her male correspondents, but other than those very general figures no further analysis was provided.

It also appears that the range of possible respondents was limited by the fact that the advertisement soliciting replies was inserted in the back of the novel referred to above. In our view the responses received from such a solicitation could hardly be said to fairly reflect the views of the male segment of American society.

The author admitted as much but said that the results culled by her were compared with responses received through a national men's magazine and they were very similar. But in the finish we have serious reservations about the scientific or sociological value of this publication as opposed, for example, to the Hite Report.

2. The book traverses numerous gross and perverted sexual practices. Some of these are:

(a) Water sports: The relevant activity in this chapter is urination (golden showers) or other forms of discharge.

(b) Defecation on one's partner—cf. pp. 187-189.

(c) Starr Eyed Oedipus: A succession of fantasies involving incestuous relationships with mothers and sisters. In one case pp. 163-165 the fantasy concerns an 11-year-old boy performing fellation on his father. The language is explicit and crude.

(d) Animals: This chapter covers sex with cows and a variety of canines.

The list could go on, but we believe that we have made the point that this publication deals with many bizarre, disgusting and unlawful sexual practices.

In considering our classification however we have had regard to what has been said by the Tribunal in Decision No. 877. That concerned an application by the Secretary for Justice for a classification of Forum magazine. There was a substantive hearing which took 2 days before the Tribunal. Witnesses from overseas and New Zealand were heard. The relevant passage from the decision reads as follows:

"... We have had most difficulty with The Forum which republishes letters said to have been sent from readers describing real or fantastic sexual experiences. We remain unconvinced that all these letters are 'expression of genuine opinions, experiences, criticisms, or interests' as the magazine alleges. We are impressed however by the evidence of Dr Sparrow and Miss Colgan which indicated that even such fantasising can be helpful to those with sexual problems. We have no doubt that any reader of reasonable maturity would distinguish the genuine from the spurious and would not suffer harm in the process."

In the interests of consistency we have considered the above dicta inasmuch as it could be applied to the content of the present publication. Forum received a restricted classification as the Tribunal thought it fair to say that in the main the more explicit articles were balanced by a series of restrained simple articles in a popular style which could be informative and helpful.

When weighing up the various factors that may be relevant to the present publication we bear in mind that Ms Friday does not appear to have had a dishonesty of purpose in assembling the material in the way she has. But it could be said that because of subject matter of the publication, the end result is that the book is not dissimilar to one which was dishonest in purpose from the outset.

This is because many of the responses received were obviously from people who were attracted to prurient and debased aspects of sex.

In dealing with this material it is very difficult for an author to surmount the problems which arise when the content of the publication is of this nature. Two obvious ways in which the damaging effect of the explicit material could be reduced are by balancing the material with content of a less offensive nature, or by placing the material in a proper scientific or sociological context. In the publication we find neither of the aforementioned factors present to any significant extent.

We think our view of the imbalance in the content of the work is supported by the following extract taken from the New York Times book review of 10 August 1980 (as printed in the book review digest 1980):

"Though the fantasies vary considerably in literacy, elaborateness, wit and the like, we note that the one thing they have in common is that they are stories—they have a beginning, a middle and an end. They are tales of adventure and conquest . . . What we have here is not fantasy in general, as Miss Friday seems to believe. . . . (The authors here) are composing, for some imagined audience, a sort of autopornography. . . . If Miss Friday has, fortunately, adopted a relatively sophisticated strategy for interpreting the influences she has also lamentably, adopted a frivolous, false and corrupt version of 'psychoanalysis' in her moral and social judgments, a version that would genuinely seem to believe . . . (The authors here) are composing, for some imagined audience, a sort of autopornography . . . If Miss Friday has, fortunately, adopted a relatively sophisticated strategy for interpreting the influences she has also lamentably, adopted a frivolous, false and corrupt version of 'psychoanalysis' in her moral and social judgments, a version that would genuinely have terrified Freud. In this respect, we respect a repository of the shallowest received ideas of our times."

Our conclusion is that Men in Love is a book of little sociological value. Had it not been for Friday's standing as an author it is possible we would have denied this book indecent. As it is we endorse the criticism of the publication in the New York Times, and reluctantly classify the book as not indecent in the hands of persons over the age of 18 years.

District Court Judge W. M. WILLIS, Chairman.
