Anwar Sadat.

He said the statement was biased. He said it could be argued that Christianity and Judaism are at least equally violent when one looks at the Old Testament or the Torah but it is not claimed that those religions “speak of violence and bloodshed in the name of religion.”

Mr Frey felt that the statement did not conform to the requirements of Television Programme Rule 5.1 (b) of objectivity, impartiality and accuracy.

The Corporation's Reply

The BCNZ Board considered the complaint on 26 February 1986 and the secretary of the corporation, Mr Ian McLean, wrote to Mr Frey on behalf of the Board on 5 March. The thrust of the corporation's reply was that the statement was made in context of an item about Moslem fundamentalism. The intent, Mr McLean said, was to make the point that, for the violent fringe of the fundamentalist movement, Islam was interpreted as providing justification and support for their actions.

Mr Frey was not satisfied. In his formal complaint to the Tribunal he argued that there is a difference between making a statement about some Moslem fundamentalists and about all of Islam. He described the statement as an extreme generalisation which added nothing to the rest of the item and was an attempt to defame Islam.

The corporation in reply submitted that, because the programme is for the hearing-impaired, it is necessarily a very much abbreviated form of the previous week's major news developments world wide. The corporation expanded on the “context” argument, saying that one could reasonably infer from the rest of the item that it was the extreme terrorist fundamentalist that was being singled out. The statement was not derogatory about Islam in general but about the faction which was referred to right throughout the item. The corporation submitted that Mr Frey's interpretation of the item as defaming Islam and by implication all those who practised that religion was rather extreme.

Finally, the corporation noted that the words “fundamentalist” or “fundamentalism” were used 11 times within 3 pages of the transcript and that this could leave no fair-minded viewer in any doubt that it was a faction of the religious movement that was being identified.

Mr Frey submitted that the fair-minded viewer would take the statement to be referring to Islam in general. He suggested that the average fair minded viewer has never lived in a Moslem country, has never looked at the Koran and knows little about Islam. He thought that such a person would take the statement to be referring to Islam in general.

Mr Frey said that anti-Islam bigotry cannot be excused by claiming that Christianity and Judaism are open to the interpretation that what was said was not what was intended and we consider that this was probably the case.

The Tribunal accepts that the script writer did not intend to defame Islam or its adherents. Nor does the statement in our view amount to a display of bigotry. The corporation's own submissions are open to the interpretation that what was said was not what was intended and we consider that this was probably the case.

Nevertheless, the statement that “Islam speaks of violence and bloodshed in the name of religion” was too broad. It was an extreme generalisation and may have been taken to mean, that violence is a primary meaning, and may have been taken to mean, that violence is a primary attribute of Islam. The corporation argued that it was saved by the context—that in an item about fundamentalists, the meaning of “Islam” would be narrowed by implication to cover only those who interpreted their religion to be authorising for violence and bloodshed.

We do not think that the context necessarily narrowed the meaning in the manner suggested. The statement came after a long pause in the script. It stood out from the context and therefore has to be judged on its plain meaning. “Islam” is not synonymous with fundamentalism. Frey's submission, that the words “fundamentalist” or “fundamentalism” were used 11 times within 3 pages of the transcript and that this could leave no fair-minded viewer in any doubt that it was a faction of the religious movement that was being identified.

The Tribunal accepts that the script writer did not intend to defame Islam or its adherents. Nor does the statement in our view amount to a display of bigotry. The corporation's own submissions are open to the interpretation that what was said was not what was intended and we consider that this was probably the case.
criticism. A fair-minded and informed viewer might well have been able to work out what the script was meant to say. But that is not what it said. And the impact of the statement may have been intensified by the usual practice of showing the full script of this programme in captions and narrating the voice-over in a careful, deliberate manner.

Mr Frey touched on one point which the corporation did not take. It is possible that the statement in its most literal sense is true. The scriptures of some major religions contain violent passages. For example, the Christian precept that "... if thy right hand offend thee, cut it off ..." (Matthew 5:30) surely involves violence and bloodshed. If there are similar sayings in the Koran, we could imagine the statement being unexceptionable in, for example, a discussion programme about the range of interpretations of Islam. But that was not the setting in which the statement was made here.

The complaint is upheld.

In the matter of an application by the Comptroller of Customs for a decision in respect of the following publication: Hustler, Vol. 12, No. 6:

Chairman: Judge R. R. Kearney.
Members: Mrs H. B. Dick, Mrs R. Barrington, Mr A. J. Graham and Ms K. Hume.

Appearances: No appearance of importer, Mr K. Wild for Comptroller of Customs.

DECISION

This magazine was privately imported through the port of Auckland by parcel post in December 1985. The magazine was seized and the importer subsequently disputed seizure. The magazine has been considered by the Tribunal by a majority of 3 to 2 finds that the publication did not offend against the tripartite test as formulated by the Tribunal in its previous decisions. In particular Mr Ellis submitted that there was no evidence of the kind contemplated by the Court of Appeal in Howell v. Lawrence Publishing Company Ltd., CA 77/84 which would support a contention that this publication was injurious to the public good.

The tribunal has previously considered the publication Hustler and in its decision No. 1032 of 7 October 1982 found Vol. 8, No. 10 of that publication to be unconditionally indecent.

In his submission to the Tribunal the Comptroller points out that there is one particular sequence under the title 159—The Dark Bros. Devil in Miss Jones, which contains a high degree of intimacy between 2 female models and 1 male model with such sexual acts as fellatio, cunnilingus and intercourse clearly depicted.

The Tribunal is unanimous that the publication offends against the tripartite test to such a degree that it must be classified as unconditionally indecent. It so classifies it.

Before the Indecent Publications Tribunal

In the matter of an application by the Comptroller of Customs for a decision in respect of the following publication: The Girls of Penthouse, Jan/Feb 1986, No. 16, Published by Penthouse International Ltd.:

Chairman: Judge R. R. Kearney.
Members: Mrs H. B. Dick, Mrs R. Barrington, Mr A. J. Graham and Ms K. Hume.

Appearances: Mr G. Ellis for importer Gordon & Gotch (NZ) Ltd., Mr K. Wild for Comptroller of Customs.

DECISION

This magazine was commercially imported by Gordon & Gotch (NZ) Ltd. as an advance copy through the port of Auckland. At the request of the importer the Comptroller of Customs considered it advisable to refer the publication to the Tribunal for classification.

The magazine consists almost entirely of photographic portfolios of 7 nude or partly clad females many of whom have apparently featured in Penthouse magazine over the last 3 years.

The Comptroller submitted that although the magazine lacked the multiple model scenes that have caused concern to the Tribunal when considering Penthouse magazines in the past that there was nevertheless such emphasis placed on genitalia in this magazine as to warrant at least a restriction to those persons who are over the age restriction of 18 years.

The 2 members of the Tribunal who are in the minority in this decision would find that the publication requires a classification as indecent for the same reasons which are set out in detail in Decision No. 10/86 in respect of the publication Fiesta and Knave.

Decision No. 15/86
Reference No. IND 16/86
IND 17/86
Before the Indecent Publications Tribunal

In the matter of an application by the Comptroller of Customs for a decision in respect of the following publications: Australian Playgirl For Men Monthly, No. 48, 49, 50, 52. Published by the Federal Publishing Co. Ltd.:

Chairman: Judge R. R. Kearney.
Members: Mrs H. B. Dick, Mrs R. Barrington, Mr A. J. Graham and Ms K. Hume.

Appearances: Mr G. Ellis for importer Gordon & Gotch (NZ) Ltd., Mr Egglington for Comptroller of Customs.

DECISION

In the records of the Indecent Publications Tribunal Australian Playgirl For Men Monthly, No. 48, 49 and 50 are covered by the reference 17/86 and No. 52 by the reference 16/86 but for obvious reasons all 4 magazines are dealt with in a single decision.

Issues Nos. 48 and 52 of Australian Playgirl For Men were imported through the port of Auckland in April and May 1986. Those issues were seized and the importers disputed forfeiture. Issues Nos. 49 and 50 were referred to the Tribunal by the Comptroller of Customs in order that all 4 issues of this publication could be considered collectively with a view to a restriction order being imposed upon Australian Playgirl For Men under the provisions of section 15A of the Indecent Publications Act 1963.

These 4 issues of Playgirl magazine are all very consistent in their presentation. Each edition is largely comprised of pictorial portfolios of single female models and 4 articles. The remainder of each edition is then filled up with stories, jokes, film reviews and snippets of news.

The bulk of the photographic content of the 4 magazines consists of photographs of single female models. It is that feature of the presentation of those models which concerns the Comptroller of Customs and his submission to the Tribunal was that a large number of the photographs depicted models in contrived and unnatural poses of a kind which justified some form of age restriction being placed upon these magazines rather than a decision of unconditionally indecent.
The Comptroller of Customs also expressed his concern with a short story contained in each magazine. As pointed out by the Comptroller these stories are of explicitly described sexual encounters.

Mr Ellis on behalf of the importer advised the Tribunal that these publications had been available in New Zealand for approximately 4 years without any question having been raised as to their indecency or as to any age restriction being placed upon their availability. Mr Ellis advised the Tribunal that the seizure of some of the publications and the presentation of all to the Tribunal for determination resulted from uncertainty in the market place. That uncertainty occurred earlier this year following statements made at Tribunal hearings by me as chairman of the Tribunal. In those statements I sought to draw the attention of publishers and importers to a concern which some members of the Tribunal had expressed that publishers seemed to be presenting much more sexually explicit material for New Zealand readers and that they ran the risk of having their publications declared unconditionally indecent. Since those statements were made the decision of the Court of Appeal in Howell v. Lawrence Publishing Company Ltd. CA 77/84 has been delivered and as set out in detail in Decision No. 10/86 in relation to the publications Knave and Fiesta the Tribunal has found by a majority of 3 to 2 that it is unable to make classifications of unconditionally indecent in respect of material which does not fall within the clear guidelines as set out in the tripartite test propounded by the Tribunal unless there is clear evidence that the publication under review is or is likely to be injurious to the public good. There is no such evidence before the Tribunal in respect of these publications but the Tribunal does find in terms of many of its previous decisions that they merit a restricted classification. Accordingly the Tribunal finds that these publications are indecent in the hands of persons under the age of 16 years.

In terms of section 15A a restriction order is made in respect of Australian Playgirl For Men Monthly as being indecent in the hands of persons under the age of 16 years.

Decision

These publications were part of a commercial shipment imported by air mail through the port of Auckland in December 1985. The publications were checked and then seized by the Collector of Customs at Auckland as being indecent. The commercial importer having disputed forfeiture they were referred to the Tribunal for classification.

In the submission made to the Tribunal on behalf of the Comptroller of Customs no attempt was made to categorise the publications or to particularise those features which might be objectionable in terms of the legislation. The Comptroller simply submitted that all of the books came within the category of cheap tawdry works which were produced solely to arouse prurient interest. In addition, the Comptroller submitted that none of the publications had any merit whatsoever and that many were made worse by evoking an infatuation with fetishes such as underwear, spanking, or large breasts.

Written representations were received from Waverley Publishing Company Ltd., an associate company of the importer on behalf of the importer.

A separate submission was made in writing in respect of the publications listed above as No. 4, 5, 6, 10, 11, 12, 13 and 14. The company conceded that most of these titles do not pretend to contain anything of social artistic or literary importance but submit nevertheless that they are unlikely to corrupt an adult. The company advises the Tribunal that at the time those particular publications were seized the Customs authorities indicated that an age restriction would be required in respect of them.

In respect of the publication Bronze Beauties (No. 7 in the list of books for consideration) the importer submitted that the decision of the Tribunal No. 962 was relevant and that at worst a similar classification as was imposed in respect of the publications the subject of that decision would be appropriate.

The final written submission from the importer was in respect of the publication Lovers Sex Guide. The publisher submitted that the publication which is a black and white representation of a male and female engaged in sexual activities was similar to publications which had received restricted classifications from the Tribunal.

The publication which caused the Tribunal the most concern was Victorian Erotica, Vol. I, No. 1 (No. 1 on the list of books in respect of this decision). This is a small cardboard backed publication of 66 pages first published in London in 1974. The publication has a great deal of text together with a large number of pictures of naked and partly dressed females, most of which would appear to be photographs taken many years ago, and some black and white line drawings. There are some more recent photographs presumably of the era of the publication in 1974 most of which display sequential scenes of a male administering spankings or whippings to the naked posterior of a female.

A great deal of the text concentrates on the prurient aspects of prurient considerations for women's chastity and prurient considerations for women's chastity and prurient considerations for women's chastity. The company and the material might be the Tribunal is satisfied that the element of violence against females and particularly young females as portrayed justifies a classification of unconditionally indecent. When added to that we have the other cheap and tawdry content it makes the publication one which falls well outside the bounds of those which can receive a restricted classification.

In respect of the remaining titles from No. 2 to 14 inclusive the Tribunal classifies these as indecent in the hands of persons under the age of 18 years.

All of those publications to which the Tribunal has given the R18 classification are indeed as such Comptroller of Customs has said in his submission cheap and tawdry and in many cases pandering to an infatuation with fetishism but none of them are of a nature as to require other than the restricted classification which has been given to them.

We find therefore as confirmed herein that the publication Victorian Erotica, Vol. I, No. 1, Spunking Special is unconditionally indecent and the remaining titles No. 2 to 14 as scheduled are classified as indecent in the hands of persons under the age of 18 years.

Dated at Wellington this 13th day of November 1986.
